A Mechanical Cotton Picker Gloomy and Foolish 50,000,000 Listening Russia Will Pay

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright 1927 by Star Co.)

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY has a machine for picking, stripping and cleaning cotton that will do away with old-fashioned hand picking.

That will cut the production cost of cotton down, for the "per strip" will strip five bales of cotton a day with only two men on the machine.

It accurate that news is more important even than the result of the Dempsey-Tunney fight. It might temporarily demoralize the Southern labor market, but will enable American cotton growers to compete with cheap labor in Egypt, the Sudan, India and elsewhere.

Dean Inge of St. Paul's, sometimes foolish as well as gloomy, says: "Government of, by and for the people is claptrap." That's what the late Sultan of Turkey said, also the late Czar of Russia and some others.

Government of the people, by the people and for the people, may not be all that Abraham Lincoln hoped it would be. But it's an improvement on government by the accident of heredity, or government by a self-elected upper class.

When you have government.

NANTUCKET BRIDE IN ALIBI PLEA FOR MATE ACCUSED OF MURDER

Nantucket, Sept. 23.—"It's all a mistake. Norman did not kill a man. I believe in him and I will be at his side when he reaches California to be tried."

Nearly frantic with grief as the result of the arrest of her husband for the alleged slaying of Paul Gotham, Los Angeles, Mrs. Norman Baker, bride of two weeks, today expressed her belief of her husband's innocence, declaring that she would be loyal to the end.

Norman Baker, active figure in the Bohemian colony here, is charged by the Los Angeles police with the slaying of Paul Gotham, and is said to be one of the trio of bandits who attempted to rob Mike Tridoni in his grocery store.

Tridoni gave battle and, while he held Gotham as a shield between himself and the guns of the other two bandits, Baker, police say, fired the shot that killed Gotham, his alleged pal.

Baker, who is lodged in the town lockup—the first person in peaceful Nantucket to be charged with a major crime—maintains his innocence and repeats over and over again that he was not in the West coast city on January 15, the date of the alleged holdup and murder.

His bride is a daily visitor, bringing him dainties and cheering him with words of loyalty and love.

"Norman wasn't there at all," she declares.

JEWS CHARGE SLANDER BY LYNN H. S. TEACHER

Charges that she had slandered "foreigners" of Lynn, particularly Jews, were preferred today against Miss Harriet F. Crosby, for more than 26 years a teacher of chemistry in Lynn English High School.

The charges were laid before Superintendent of Schools Harry S. Gruver of Lynn by a committee consisting of three Jewish members of the senior class of the school, who were accompanied by Attorney Samuel G. Zack as counsel.

The committee, who declared they had been selected to act for all the

When Edith arrived home from school at noon her mother told her about the call for volunteers, which

THE QUESTIONABLE COUNT—TUNNEY DOWN FOR 14 SECONDS?

WHEN GENE WAS DOWN AND, SOME SAY, "OUT!"

Remarkable photo showing Tunney on floor of ring after Dempsey's hurricane attack in seventh round. It was first time Gene was ever felled in battle. Dempsey's manager charges Gene was down fourteen seconds and that Jack should have been proclaimed the victor then. He plans to protest decision at once. Ring officials admit Tunney failed to rise for thirteen seconds, but claim "count" was legal because Jack didn't hustle to a neutral corner as Gene toppled.

FILMS REVEAL NO LOW BLOWS STRUCK

Chicago, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The receipts of the Tunney-Dempsey fight were $2,658,660, the record gate of pugilism, Tex Rickard announced today. The gate was $63,660 more than the Dempsey-Tunney battle at Philadelphia last year, and topped the Dempsey-Carpentier gate by $1,032,080, and the Firpo-Dempsey battle by $1,576,070.

Chicago, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Motion pictures of the Dempsey-Tunney fight showed that Tunney was down in the seventh round for fourteen seconds, officials of the Chicago Film Laboratory Company which developed the pictures made by the Goodart Company of New York, announced today.

For part of the period, however, the pictures showed Dempsey standing over the champion, or in his own corner before he was waved to a far corner by the referee.

The picture showed Tunney went down after a right to the jaw.

Slow motion pictures of the contest, officials said, revealed no low blows by either contestant.

The pictures are to be shown later in the day in Chicago theatres.

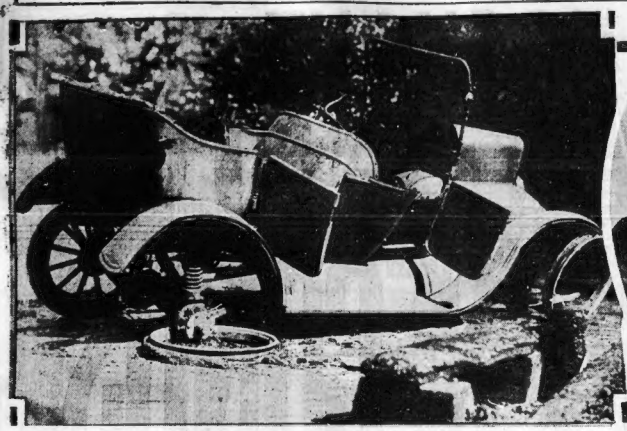
"Slain" East Boston Man's Car ~ Father of Victim ~ Ruins of Wilmington Cottage



BURNED IN FRONT OF COTTAGE
The auto owned by John Fogarty, 23, of No. 120 Eutaw street, East Boston, whose charred body was found in the ruins of a cottage at Wilmington, also suffered from the blaze which razed the building. Four are held as police continue their probe of the fire.

AMBROSE FOGARTY
The victim's father was a member of the famous eight-oar crew of the Columbia Racing Association in 1900.

BODY FOUND ON FRAME OF IRON BED
Fogarty's body lay across the frame of one of the iron beds when it was found by persons searching the ruins. The head and shoulders were clear of the bed. Only a few of the floor timbers were untouched by the flames.

she said after leaving the jail today. "True he was not here, but I believe him when he says he was not in the West when the shooting took place."

The arrest of Baker, coming as it did on the heels of his marriage, was felt by two other families here besides his own. For the past five days the mother and father of the youth, a dark, handsome chap, always well groomed and pleasant, have been in despair.

The Baker family proudly traces its history here as far back as the early white settlers who inhabited the island while it was still a part of the State of New York.

The other family affected, the name of which is withheld from publication for obvious reasons, was the innocent cause of Baker making his trip out West, during which the police of Los Angeles say, the murder was committed.

HAD BOHEMIAN CAFE.

Three years ago, Baker, at that time very popular here with the girls because of his good looks and genial manner, opened rooms on lower Main street, which he called the Bohemian quarters of Nantucket. Those who professed anything Bohemian flocked to these rooms, elaborately furnished and designed after the Bohemian basement apartments in the Greenwich Village section of New York city.

Shortly after the close of the first successful season of the Bohemian centre, a raid was conducted on the apartment.

In the raid conducted by the local police, young Baker was arrested. With him at that time was a 16-year-old girl of a local family. Baker was arraigned in court following his arrest on a serious charge. Judge Fitzrandolph, who presided at the trial, after hearing the girl's story, gave Baker the choice of going to jail or closing his so-called Bohemian centre and leaving town. He closed the place and left town.

The trip from home carried him to Los Angeles, where, according to the police of that city, his tendencies brought him in company with several young women and the young man with whose murder he is now charged.

His return to his home here last Spring created a surprise and was the subject of much discussion around town, where in his absence the nature of his forced vacation became known.

When the news of his marriage broke, two weeks ago, it was generally accepted by those who were most bitter in denouncing the young man's return that, with his sudden and unexpected venture into matrimony, no more would ever be heard of Baker.

'LIBERTY' DRY LAW REPEAL FIGHT IN SUPREME COURT

The controversy between the Constitutional Liberty League and the Liberal Civic League, on their initiative petitions in connection with the repeal of the 18th Amendment, received further impetus today. It was announced that Judge Sanderson in Supreme Court, next Tuesday, will hear the petition of four signers of the Constitutional Liberty League's petition, for a writ of mandamus compelling the Secretary of State to issue blanks for signatures in support of the League's initiative petition.

This action followed the failure of the Liberal Civic League's attempt in Superior Court to obtain a writ preventing issuance of blanks to the Constitutional Liberty League. The Liberal Civic League ruling also will be heard by the Supreme Court.

$125 AUTO FINES FOR BROOKLINE DRIVER

That Samuel Grow of Verndale street, Brookline, was not drunk, but was driving an automobile unbut was driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, was decided in Quincy District Court today when Grow appeared on seven charges preferred by Patrolman Anthony Panora of Weymouth.

Grow was fined $100 on the charge of operating under the influence and $25 for operating without a license. He appealed.

He was found not guilty on charges of drunkenness, refusing to stop when signalled by an officer, and operating so as to endanger the lives of the public.

so-called foreigners in the senior class, said they were willing to accept a public apology by Miss Crosby.

BOY CAUSES LAUGH.

They told Supt. Gruver that the alleged slander took place yesterday morning, after a boy student had entered the chemistry class room late. They said he was told to take a front seat by Miss Crosby, who then asked his name and nationality. According to the committee, when the boy said he was Italian, the teacher replied:

"Oh, another foreigner."

This was greeted with laughter by some of the pupils, the committee said, after which the teacher rapped for order and angrily declared the country was "being overrun by foreigners who represented the scum of Europe."

She was further quoted as saying that Lynn was being "overrun with Jews" and that she, as a descendant of Mayflower Pilgrims, could not see any good in this movement.

GIRL IN TEARS.

The committee said that one girl pupil burst into tears, and after the class had left the room Miss Crosby apologized to her, but that the girl refused to accept the apology. In the afternoon the "foreign" element of the class got together, and selected the committee which reported to the superintendent.

Superintendent Gruver, after hearing the story of the student committee, said that a thorough investigation will be made. Miss Crosby is known as a most efficient teacher, and is held in high esteem, he said.

4 HELD IN $1000 EACH IN LAKE FIRE DEATH

Four men were held today in Woburn district court in bail of $1,000 each on the charge of manslaughter in the fire mystery at the Iwana cottage, Wilmington, in which the charred body of John Fogarty of East Boston was found.

Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath of Boston performed an autopsy today at the North Grove street mortuary, and police officials and District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County will base future action on his report.

Was Fogarty dead before the fire broke out? Was he so injured that he could not crawl to safety as the flames licked around him? Did a mysterious wound on his forehead cause death and was this injury from a blow?

These are questions the medical examiner will answer, if possible, before the case next comes up in court on September 30.

Pleas of not guilty were made by the four men, Edward Sands of Pelliway West, Medford; Daniel F. Hayes of Vernal street, Everett; Robert Quigley of Minot street, Reading, and Thomas F. Barrett of Meridian street, East Boston.

Former District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien of Suffolk County represented Sands in court and Frank Ford of South Boston, former city councillor, appeared for Hayes.

The police, according to Chief Hill of Wilmington, charge that Fogarty, who was a well-known resident of East Boston, was hit on the head with a plaster statue during a "friendly" wrestling bout, the blow causing his death.

This theory was developed after grilling of the four men at Woburn police station.

All are said to have admitted that a dispute had arisen between Sands and Fogarty at the Rainbow, a dance hall and lunch room.

They said it started over Sands' attempting to drive Fogarty's car.

Envoy Killed

BARON VON MALTZAN
Ambassador to the United States, who was killed today with five other persons in crash of passenger plane in Germany.

The young men were all at the dance hall, accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Sullivan, wife of Walter Sullivan, who lives across the lake from the burned cottage, and several other young women.

The argument continued, they admitted, after returning to the cottage and developed into a scuffle, they told the police, and chairs and tables were overturned and other furniture knocked around the cottage.

old daughter at the home of the Ambassador's aged father in Munich.

The Baroness and daughter had left Partenkirchen, Bavarian Alps resort for Munich to meet the Ambassador, with whom they had been planning to return to American early in October.

Immediately upon learning of the tragedy, President Hindenberg telegraphed condolences to the baroness as follows:

"My heartiest sympathy goes out to you in this terrible misfortune. Please accept my deepest condolences. The German nation loses one of its most prominent representatives. Baron von Maltzan always will be held in honorable memory by the German people."

The cause of the crash, most disastrous in the history of German commercial aviation, was not determined but aviation officials said they suspected sabotage.

Eye witness said the plane approached Schleis at a height of 1,200 feet.

The pilot attempted to land south of Schleis, on the highway leading to Hof, Bavaria. The left wing broke off, observers said, and the plane spun downward 300 feet like a falling leaf, turning somersaults.

The ship struck the earth while upside down, and drove the forward part of the fuselage two feet into the earth.

The wing was thrown twenty yards from the fuselage. All of the occupants with the exception of Feiler were killed instantly. Feiler died within an hour.

The death ship was one of the Lufthansa concern's regular passenger planes, the "D-585-Mercury" built by the Daurnler Works. It was commissioned last May.

Charlet was an experienced pilot having flown several hundred thousand miles. For the past several months he had regularly flown the airways lap between Berlin and Munich, on which he met his death today.

Von Maltzan Hoped to Stay 20 Years in U. S.—Kellogg

Washington, Sept. 23 (A.P.)—Secretary Kellogg paid tribute to Baron Von Maltzan in a statement issued at the State Department as follows:

"Baron Von Maltzan was one of Germany's most accomplished diplomats. He proved his ability in Washington as he had long since proved it in Berlin. His aim in the United States, outside of his purely official duties, was to bring about once more cordial relations between the American and the German people. His efforts were highly successful.

"He often said he hoped to remain in Washington for twenty years and it is a tragedy that his death should have put an end to the fine work he was carrying on.

"In offering our sincere sympathy to the German Government I must record the personal sorrow of the officers of the Department of State with whom the Ambassador came in contact."

DIVORCES HUSBAND WHO WAVED KNIFE

Declaring that her husband, armed with a carving knife, chased her about the house on one occasion, and as late as yesterday sought to induce her to drop her divorce action by chasing her with an iron bar in his hand, Mrs. Florence M. Bimler of Roxbury was granted a decree from Henry W. Bimler in Suffolk County Probate court today.

In awarding the decree on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment, Judge McCoole also granted Mrs. Bimler $15 a week alimony.

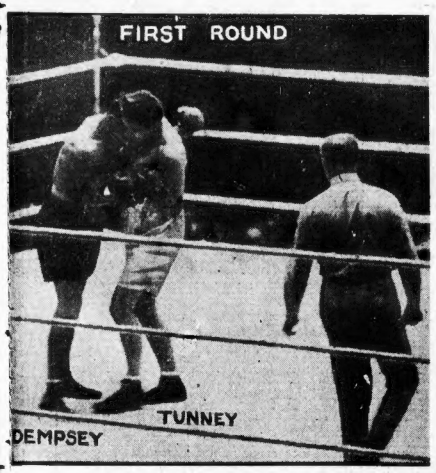
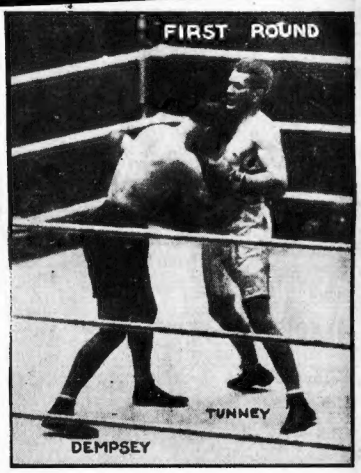
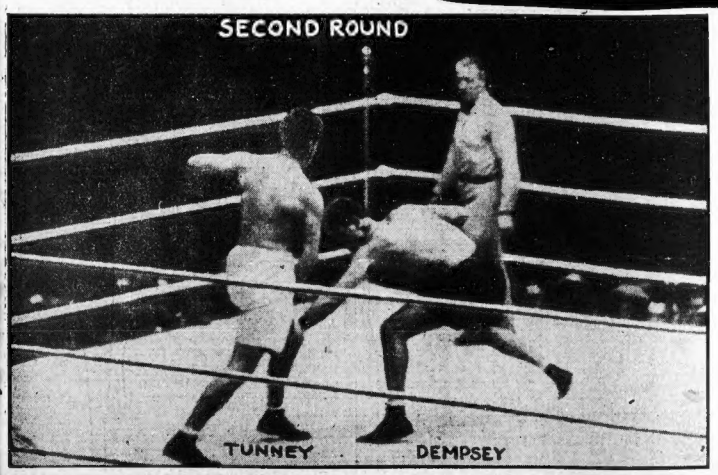
BOSTON
BOSTON, FRIDAY, S



First round with Tunney scoring with a left on Dempsey. The round opened with Jack after Gene. The two sparred cautiously with Dempsey feinting for an opening and Tunney holding back. The second half of the round found Gene the aggressor. When the round ended Dempsey was backing away.



Another view of the first round showing Jack Dempsey driving a right to the heart. Jack missed his first right lunge after the bell started the fight. This is one of his next two blows.



In the second round this picture shows the agile Tunney dodging back as Dempsey misses a left. This round began with Jack fighting warily. At one time the two battlers were dancing and boxing high. Tunney also missed several swings this round.

LEVINE AT LAST TAKES OFF FOR INDIA

Vienna, Sept. 23.—The Columbia monoplane in which Capt. Walter Hinchcliffe and Charles A. Levine are on their way to India, circled the Vienna airdrome at 8:30 p. m. (Vienna is approximately 900 miles from the plane's starting point, Cranwell, England.) Levine's plan to set a new non-stop distance record ended when the Columbia landed at 6:30 p. m. in a pouring rain. The plane landed safely.

Cranwell, England, Sept. 23 (A.P.)—Balked by bad weather in his oft-expressed desire to fly back to America, Charles A. Levine, stormy petrel of the air, took off with Captain Walter Hinchcliffe at 1:06 this morning, after many postponements, in an endeavor to beat the long-distance non-stop record in an easterly direction.

The plane was sighted over Croydon at 9:20 a. m., going east.

Their goal was understood to be Delhi, capital of India, approximately 4,750 miles from Cranwell, or with good luck, Calcutta, 500 miles farther. Either would far surpass the record set by Levine and Clarence Chamberlin in their flight from New York to Germany in the Columbia, the same monoplane used in the present attempt.

The heavily-loaded Columbia bumped the ground in hop-skip-jump fashion twice before she rose with the aid of a 36-mile wind, and circled to dart away to the east into a clearing sky. There had been some rain, and the plane at the take-off was headed into a rainbow, hailed by those on the field as a good omen.

Levine wore the "lucky" blue suit and shirt in which he crossed the Atlantic. He and the Imperial Airways pilot had apparently settled the differences which arose between them last week, as there was no friction at the start, and Levine made a last-minute arrangement for insurance for Mrs. Hinchcliffe in case of a crash.

Bidding goodby to his wife and daughter, Captain Hinchcliffe said: "Don't worry." The next message you get from me will be date-lined India."

It was estimated that the Columbia would be able to stay in the air 55 hours.

SCHOLARSHIP NANTUCKET DUE HOME TOMORROW

POOR PHONE SERVICE AT SPRINGFIELD UNDER PROBE

Springfield, Sept. 22 (A.P.)—As a result of a preliminary check of Western Massachusetts complaints of telephone service, W. H. O'Brien, chief of the telephone and telegraph division of the public utilities department, said today an inspector will come here to make a thorough investigation.

Mr. O'Brien said when higher rates were granted two years ago it was with the understanding the service should be above serious criticism. Slowness in making installations will also be probed.

POLICE DRAG LAKE FOR BODY OF MILLIONAIRE

Stamford, Ct., Sept. 23 (A.P.)—Stamford and New York State police were today searching for the body of Benjamin F. Harris, fifty-nine, real estate dealer, who is believed to have been drowned while fishing in Lake Tennetta in Brewster, N. Y., after going into bankruptcy in Norwalk. Harris came here twentysix years ago with $400 and started the business of which he became president and treasurer, which now has resources of $6,000,000.

100 PLANES AT SPOKANE IN PRIZE RACES

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 23 (A.P.)—With approximately 100 airplanes on Felts Field, Spokane turned attention today to the seventh annual national air races and parachute contests.

The non-stop race from New York to Spokane finaled when both entries, Eddie Stinson and A. C. "Doke" Schiller, lande' in Montana, and the race was declared no contest.

Prizes totalling $7,600 and numerous trophies are at stake in three commercial plane and two military events. Races today included one of 100 miles, two of 60 miles, two of 30 miles and one of 20 miles around a ten-mile course.

Among entrants in the commercial plane races were C. W. Holman, St. Paul; E. E. Ballough, Chicago; N. B. Manser, Spokane, and John P. Wood, Wausau, Wis., who won first to fourth places, respectively, in the class A New York to Spokane class B derby.

Air stunts and expected arrival of Stinson's big monoplane also held interest. Stinson arrived here in another plane after leaving his ship at Missoula, where he was forced down by engine trouble.

Officials also expected Schiller to fly here in the monoplane "Loyal Windsor." Schiller dropped out at Billings, Mont., because of low gas supply. Because planes making stops were disqualified under the race rules, no prizes will be awarded, officials said. The race stakes were $1,000 for first prize and $5,000 for second.

Legion Buffalo Is Presented to Paris After Rampage

Paris, Sept. 23 (I.N.S.)—The five buffalo, sent by Mayor Schwab of Buffalo, to the city of Paris through the Erie County delegation of the American Legion, was presented to the municipality after having almost transformed himself into a white elephant.

The presentation was made in the Jardin des Plantes.

Caged in a Paris livery stable, the beast kicked its way to freedom and caused considerable commotion and damage for a time. It was recaptured, but because of its unruly spirit, it appeared for a while that Paris would refuse to accept the gift.

GOVERNMENT ORDER BANS SKIRTS THAT SHOW KNEES

Budapest, Sept. 23 (A.P.)—What the well-dressed girl students in night schools shall wear has been decided by the Hungarian government. A government order today decrees all girls between fourteen and eighteen at night schools in any part of the country shall not wear skirts that fall less than four inches below the knee.

The order also prohibits wearing low-necked dresses, silk or flesh-colored stockings, or short sleeves. Skirts must be blue and pleated, and in cases of girls under fourteen must cover the knee.

FIRST VETS DUE ON THURINGIA SUNDAY

The first of the touring war vets are due back in port Sunday with the arrival of the Hamburg-American liner Thuringia with more than 100 passengers for Boston.

The vessel will dock at Commonwealth pier about 2 p. m., according to a radio message from Captain Frederich Buch received today.

On board is a party of vets and their ladies led by Lieutenant James E. Sheeran of the State police, who is accompanied by Mrs. Sheeran, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Toland and the Misses Anne McHugh, Catherine O'Malley, Anne McKenny and Margaret Tracy. The fair members of the party are connected with auxiliaries of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. They saw the first days of the Legion convention, following a tour of European countries.

Mrs. Clarence H. Esty of Addington road, Brookline, is also aboard with her daughter, Miss Frances F. Esty, and son, Geoffrey W. Esty. The latter is to resume his studies at Harvard. The family made a general tour of Europe.

Professor Taylor Starck of Harvard is returning from a tour of Germany and France with Mrs. Starck. Among other passengers is Miss Louisa L. Dresel, sister of the late Loring Dresel, attache d'affaires at Berlin. Miss Dresel spent considerable time renewing acquaintances and returns now to her home, Fresh Pond Parkway, Cambridge.

DECIDES ON NEW BRAKE TEST RULE

Registrar Frank A. Goodwin has decided on a new regulation governing stopping distances in the testing of emergency brakes on trucks, on which the manufacturer's rated capacity is two tons or more.

On such vehicles when loaded to manufacturer's rated capacity or more, a decelerometer reading of 100 feet will be permitted.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

'Try-Out' Theatre at Wellesley Goes on Trial Monday Night

SOON COMES THE EVENING marking a new departure in drama as presented hereabouts. The premiere of the "Try-Out" Theatre in Wellesley Monday next is the momentous occasion when those legions staunchly devoted to promotion of dramatic excellence and keenly alert to applaud a pioneer in untried fields will fill the small and pleasant theatre to the last available place.

IT'S SOMETHING UNUSUAL. A theatre in the country with a metropolitan backing is the "Try-Out." It lies in a quiet seclusion, reached by motor down a country road. But however secluded and however detached from the city's whirl, all next week will a pathway be blazoned to its door by devotees of the arts. Leighton Rollins, its founder and director, serves various of the Muses in this venture of his.

THIS AFTERNOON MR. ROLLINS has his advisory board gathered at the theatre in a preliminary festivity, a tea with Mrs. Joseph Dix Snell and Mrs. Harry Leighton Rollins at the urns and Miss Nancy Vose (just back from Europe) passing the cups and cakes. The affair is really more than a tea, in the strictest sense, for the ballet "Aucassin and Nicolette" has its rehearsal and the gorgeous futuristic curtain done for the theatre by Miss Grace Ripley will swing in its place.

IT WILL FILL THE EYE WITH a perfect riot of color as enormous pink flamingos stalk across a background of orange, scarlet, jade green and gold. Then there is the monster hooded fireplace that gives the theatre proper a bit of Old England's imposing beauty, and as Elizabeth Thayer Huntington (Mrs. Raymond) already has her dills hung in the entranceway the entire place is thus radiantly colored.

THE PATRONS AND THE PATRONESSES are a most important listing, with Holker Abbott's name leading its great distinction to the "A's" and Robert Gould Shaw's shedding brilliance further down the alphabet. Mr. and Mrs. Roger Babson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Beebe, Mrs. Melville M. Bigelow, Mrs. Richard Walden Hale, Mrs. William P. Fay, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lee, Mrs. Edward B. Kellogg and Miss Lila Hathaway Swift are in it.

ALSO THE REV. EUGENE RODMAN SHIPPEN and Mrs. Shippen, Dr. and Mrs. Donald Gregg, Mrs. George Wentworth, Miss Frances M. Baker and a host of others. For an advisory board Mr. Rollins has enrolled a score or more gifted and wise in the way of the theatre and its allied arts. There is, for instance, Mrs. John Jay White of New York. Another is Mrs. John W. Alexander, also of the metropolis.

OTHERS OF THE ARISTOCRACY of brains having place is an "advisor." Also a player. And in the list are Mr. and Mrs. Gamaliel Bradford, Miss Katharine Lee Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Dallin, Miss Ellen Fitz Pendleton, Miss Vida Dutton Scudder and others equally distinguished in the arts and letters. Mrs. Joseph Courtney plays a double role in the venture; even a triple one, it might be said. She is an "advisor." Also a player. And

MRS. HENRY F. COLT
She is one of the attending group for Miss Dorothy Batchelder when she marries Richard Alline Morse tomorrow in St. John's Church, Beverly Farms.

Suburban Enterprise Unique in Having Metropolitan Backing is about to become a full fledged author.

AS THE "DUCHESS ON CANTERBURY" Mrs. Courtney takes her merry way through the presentation of "Two Gentlemen of Soho." And as an authoress she has applied her facile pen and delightful wit to an operetta's composition. Knowing Mrs. Courtney it's very easy to surmise that her "Virtuous Scrubwoman" as the operetta is named, will be an original bit of sprightly nonsense.

CONSTANCE AND HER HUBBY "TEMPERAMENTAL"

Paris, Sept. 23 (I.N.S.).—Captain Alastair MacIntosh, husband of Constance Talmadge, screen actress, today confirmed reports that divorce actions had been filed by both parties in Edinburgh, Scotland.

"Our divorces," MacIntosh said, "had been previously reported from almost every city in the world, but the Edinburgh report happens to be accurate. "The only reasons for the action are temperamental differences."

JAPS LEARN HUB DOESN'T LIVE ON BEANS

"The name of Boston is very much in the heart of the Japanese and I myself have adopted your great city as my American home city," were the words chosen by Rear Admiral Osami Nagano, speaking to 400 Bostonians at the luncheon given today for Nagano and visiting officers and midshipmen of the Japanese warships that arrived in the harbor, Tuesday.

"Some Japanese, but very few, think of Bostonians as people who talk like a book and eat a lot of beans," he remarked, "but I and others who have had an opportunity to visit the city leave with the feeling that we should and must know each other more for the benefit of all.

"We make this trip to America in an earnest endeavor to bring about friendly relations, both social and commercial. We feel that we can do it in the several months that we will visit American cities. Our reception in Boston, anyway, is a wonderful start."

The luncheon was attended by high army and navy officials in addition to Mayor Nichols, representative of Governor Fuller, and others.

Color was added to the occasion by renditions of the Japanese Naval Band the Charlestown Navy Yard Band. The Japanese musicians rendered a medley of American songs, including "Dixie," "Suwanee River" and other favorites.

Movie Folk Rush Back to Work After Fight

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—All I can think of tonight is that dizzy old refrain, "After The Ball Is Over." The battle is over, the smoke is cleared away, and the film folk are hieing themselves home to Hollywood, New York and other parts West, East, North and South.

I had supposed the center of the film world was located in Hollywood, but since Tunney and his opponent Dempsey decided to make Chicago their headquarters, I am confident that the city by the lake is the film center of the universe.

I have seen everyone. Rushing along Michigan Boulevard intent on the fight, stars have jostled with governors, and senators have rubbed elbows with directors. A fight I am convinced is the common meeting ground of the world.

The only piece of news I know is that Harry Richmond in the "Scandals" has been made an offer through Sid Grauman to come to Hollywood and star. I don't know where Sid will place him. But I heard the offer made and accepted. It looks like United Artists.

Elizabeth Pickett, who was chosen by Winfield Sheehan to make a series of educational pictures for Fox was here during the fight. Not to attend the bout, however, but to give her home town, Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago, her moral support.

Au revoir. I am headed for home and Hollywood. It will be peaceful, too, after this strenuous week.

I BELIEVE I mentioned in these columns a long time ago that "Chicago" was to be made into a movie with Phyllis Haver in the leading role. I was right. Now comes word from Hollywood that work was started earlier in the week with a cast that rivals "The King of Kings."

Those who have been chosen to support Miss Haver are Victor Mormond, Robert Edeson, Warren Richmond, Otto Lederer, Gene Palette, Sidney D'Albrook, Clarence Burton, T. Roy Barnes, Julia Faye, May Robson and Virginia Bradford.

MAYOR WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON is popular with the theatrical folk. He understands their whims and fancies. He sent Rosetta and Vivian Duncan to Soldier Field with a personal police escort. You see the Duncans are personal friends of Jack Dempsey and they didn't know how they could reach the fight in time without help.

Chicago's delightful mayor furnished that help in the way of four able bodied police officers who rushed the Duncans from the Chicago theatre to the fight in excellent time.

Hoot Gibson who has been itching to leave Universal is to have as his last Western under his contract, a Guy Empey drama. Empey, by the way, had a fine offer for "A Helluva of a War," his latest novel.

M. G. M. IT seems to me is having a lot of transactions with Warners. They no more than get Conrad Nagel all set as a Warner favorite than Sam or Jack or some one of the Brothers borrows Owen Moore. Owen plays the leading male role in "In Name Only."

IN my mail at the Congress comes a chatty note from Florence Lawrence dramatic critic of the Los Angeles Examiner. Florence who can talk of nothing but Pamela, her grand-daughter, writes to say she is entertaining the young lady with her first birthday party.

I am mighty sorry I cannot be there for to tell the truth I share Florence's enthusiasm over that young lady's charms. If ever she decides to go into the movies she will find a sponsor in me.

WHEN I think of the fear and dread the yellow envelopes of the telegraph company used to inspire in my heart I could laugh myself sick. Here in Chicago I know I have the record of telegrams received. Even Joseph Schenk cannot hope to equal the number sent me. True many of them came from press agents, but still they arrive.

Yesterday fifty were opened and read. One of them came from Samuel Goldwyn. He sent a long wire lamenting that a story he thought sure was had gone in the waste basket.

He should know that my column is run according to my own ideas, not to please my friends. After a tirade he ends by saying: "After all you are only a movie writer, not a prize fight specialist." Alas don't I know it after reading the copy of those experts. Another press agent wires to tell me his troubles. O Death where is thy sting. I have been a movie critic.

I FELT very sorry to hear that George Nichols, one of the finest actors on the screen, had passed on. Mr. Nichols, who played the part of the cruel old father in "White Gold," opposite Jetta Goudal, was in bad health when he played that never-to-be-forgotten role. But like so many movie people, he kept on going despite his bad health.

SID GRAUMAN holds the world's record for being the best long-distance sleeper in captivity. He slept so sound when the telephone operator called to tell him at the Congress Hotel that it was 12 o'clock she couldn't raise an answer. A stalwart policeman, knocking at the door, with these words, "Say, are you dead in there?" roused Sid to action.

"To think," said Hollywood's favorite, "that I was reported to have committed suicide when I was only asleep."

Well—policemen will have their little jokes.

RESERVES DECISION IN SUIT AGAINST WOBURN

Judge Sanderson, in Supreme Court today, reserved decision on a petition brought by Philip H. Doherty against Mayor Thomas H. Duffy and other officials of Woburn, for a writ of mandamus to compel them to pay him $5,690 for land taken by right of eminent domain in 1920 for highway construction.

The Woburn city council last March passed an order appropriating $5,690 for that purpose, but the mayor returned it without his approval.

PREDICT FIRST SNOW; GET YOUR COAL

The snow that began in the gloaming
By Summer had turned to Fall.

That's the sense of the "Snow Man" after a snowless day, although who but a certain type of person would expect snow on a day in September like, for instance, today or yesterday.

Now that the slapping is done in Chicago, the "Snow Man" of the Boston Evening American feels that the great and glorious people may well turn their thoughts to other things.

When will it snow, for instance? If, by chance, you were ill or at the dentist's or something, and didn't hear bout it, the great amateur weather prognosticators' sweepstakes are under way, with coal and coke in the offing—and for the lucky ones, in the bin.

It is a joust arranged principally to show up those Metropolitan Boston residents who have been claiming they can tell just when this and that will happen to the weather in Metropolitan Boston—and how they arrived at their conclusion.

For the best prognosticator who comes nearest the day, hour and minute of the first snowfall in Greater Boston, three tons of genuine, free-burning, heat-producing coal of the anthracite variety, priced at $48 total, will accrue.

The second nearest predicter will receive three tons of coke valued at $39; the third will get two tons of coal at $32; the fourth two tons of coke, $26; the fifth one ton coal, $16, and the sixth one ton coke, $13.

All predictions must be accompanied by a letter of not more than 50 words, explaining on what basis the forecast was reached.

The firm of E. S. Morse & Co., of Charlestown has donated six tons of coal toward the presentations and the New England Coal & Coke Company of Stuart street, six tons of coke.

For past records of first snowfalls in Metropolitan Boston, see yesterday's editions, even if you have to go down cellar and root out the paper.

Address your predictions to the "Snow Man," Boston Evening American, No. 8 Winthrop Square, and when the first snow actually falls, the predictions will be judged by George A. Loveland, meteorologist at the Boston Weather Bureau.

LONG TAXATION PLAN OPPOSED BY LOMASNEY

A change in the present method of taxing tangible personal property was urged today by Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long at a hearing before the special legislative tax commission at the State House, and it met with bitter opposition from Representative Martin M. Lomasney.

A constitutional amendment would be necessary to make the changes Commissioner Long proposed. This change the commissioner argued was worthy of consideration, to which the veteran Lomasney replied:

"Where are we going to land if we start tearing up the constitution?"

Commissioner Long's plan is to divide personal property in several classes with a different rate on each class.

James J. Casey of Cambridge, president of the Association of Massachusetts Assessors, declared the subject would be considered at the next convention of assessors in November. Casey recommended an excise tax on automobiles asserting that the Cambridge tax rate could be lowered 50 cents if the full amount of the personal property tax on automobiles could be collected.

Representative Lomasney brought out, in questioning Casey, that $50,000,000 worth of college and church property in the University City is exempt from taxation.

ALL AUTOS BARRED TO TWO CLASSES AT WESLEYAN

Middletown, Ct., Sept. 23 (A.P.)—The probability that Middletown will have fewer motor vehicles registered this year than ever does not rest upon any apparent decadence in the population or prosperity of the community, but upon the fiat of the powers that be at Wesleyan University. The collegiate flivver and its big brothers will not be barred but will be considerably limited.

Members of the two lower classes will not be permitted to keep automobiles at college under any circumstances, but to such bars have been erected against the possession of machines by seniors and juniors.

Upper classmen will, however, be required to register their automobiles with the dean, and the hint has gone abroad that in case one of these students allows other interests to distract his attention from his studies the dean would at least be in a position to determine if one of those other interests is an automobile.

2 INJURED SLIGHTLY IN BLAST ON FERRY BOAT

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 23 (I.N.S.)—The ferryboat Chester, bound here from Stamford, Conn., was disabled near Lloyd's Neck today, as the result of the blowing out of a gasket in the boiler. The engineer and firemen were burned, but not seriously. There were a few passengers an done automobile on board.

The distress signal was sounded, and as steam poured out, persons on yachts in Oyster Bay harbor thought the ferryboat was afire.

The ferryboat was towed to its dock at Oyster Bay.

4 ELOPERS WIRE 'WE'RE HAPPY IN FLORIDA'

While telegraph wires hummed and the police of half a hundred cities and towns between Boston and Florida sought four young Newton elopers today, a message from 16-year-old Betty Gray reached her parents,—Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Gray of 128 Church street, Newton, and ended the search.

"We are all at the Winter home in St. Petersburg, Fla. Don't worry, and please forgive us," was the message.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray hurriedly began packing grips for a trip to Florida, after notifying parents of the other elopers.

Incidentally, Mr. and Mrs. Gray packed in their hearts a large amount of forgiveness and a parental blessing, which it was intimated will be bestowed upon their daughter and her new husband, Edward Stuart Day of Otis street, Newtonville.

But with the other eloping couple, Harold Macy, son of Attorney and Mrs. John E. Macy of No. 65 Prospect park, Newtonville, and Mildred Ferry, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ferry of No. 304 Bellevue street, Old Lady Fortune is not doing so much smiling. The Macy's had "nothing to say" and from all indications it will be some time before they lose the Grays in bestowing the welcomed parental blessing.

EXCITED WHOLE SCHOOL

When the elopement became known among the student body of Newton High School, where both girls were students, there was a furor of excitement. Principal L. O. Palmer, however, declared he knew nothing about the affair and refused to be interviewed.

The two boys and two girls, all children of well-to-do parents of the Newtons, were married at Derry, N. H., in a double wedding last Saturday. They made the trip there in an automobile owned by Betty Gray, given her by her father. The same machine was used in the honeymoon trip over the roads to Florida.

With a typical bridegroom's smile, young Day, who is nineteen, said: "God is watching. Rev. C. M. Tibbetts in Derry that he was twenty-two years old and sufficiently so to marry Miss Gray. Young Macy, who is also nineteen, was equally careful with the result that there was a double wedding.

All four families are widely known throughout the Newtons. Macy who was graduated from Newton High School last year, and is the only one employed, is the son of Attorney John E. Macy, who has offices at No. 73 Tremont street, Boston. Day's father is an electrical engineer and lives in one of the most exclusive sections of Newton.

Miss Gray's father is a wealthy contractor.

GOVERNOR "AL" SMITH ILL WITH BRONCHITIS

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Governor Alfred E. Smith, on advice of his physician today, was confined to his bed in Hotel Biltmore, suffering from an attack of bronchitis, developed after delivering an address in an enclosed radio broadcasting booth at the Madison Square Garden radio fair.

Maybe It's Mourning for Some, But It's Riches for Them

Sterling, Ct., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The most exacting connoisseur of feminine adornment could be no more pleased over the happy inspiration of dress designers than are the inhabitants of Sterling over "the wearing of the black."

Nearly every working man in Sterling is employed by the United States Finishing Company, which has, for the first time in four years, just gone from part time to overtime hasb because, as John L. Welsh, a foreman, explains, women now prefer black to any other color for best dresses, and cotton is retaining favor for feminine finery. The company's specialty is a soft black dye for cotton.

Lindy Jumps Again

San Diego, Cal., Sept. 23 (I.N.S.)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh took off from Mahoney Field today for a non-stop flight to Tucson, Ariz.

2 TURN STATE'S EVIDENCE IN FIREBUG CASE

James L. Downey, nephew of an official of the Boston Fire Department, accused of causing three fires and attempting to burn two other buildings went on trial in Middlesex Superior Court today before Judge Harold P. Williams.

The courtroom was crowded with spectators, many o fthem city officials.

The government charged that on August 28 last, Downey caused fires at the Fellows Realty Corporation, No. 17 First street, Cambridge, Engine 3 firehouse, Gore street, Cambridge and the Ohio Chemical Company, Hamilton street, Cambridge. He was also charged with attempting to burn Ladder 2 firehouse, Portland street, Cambridge and the Anchor Welding Corporation, Brookline street, Cambridge.

In his opening District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell told the jury the two men who were indicted with Downey would testify as government witnesses and that he would not press the cases against them. They are Alton G. Steeves of West Somerville and Robert W. Granfors of the West End.

Esther Hayes, fourteen, No. 172 Brookline street, Cambridge, government witness, testified she saw Downey's car near the Anchor Welding corporation shortly before a fire broke out.

Steeves, one of the men who turned State's evidence, testified he met Downey August 28 and that they went to several of the places where the fires occurred.

Downey left the car on these occasions, he said.

KOENNECKE DELAYS NEXT HOP IN WORLD FLIGHT

DOG GIVES FIRE ALARM, THEN DIES OF BURN

North Hanover, Sept. 23.—"Lady," a bird dog and the night guardian of the Old Colony estate, died today in a fire that threatened to destroy one of the show places of this town, but not before she awakened her owner in time to save the main house.

A garage, two automobiles and several outbuildings were destroyed, the fire being the work of a firebug, so they believe. Harry Henderson, owner of the estate, estimated the damage at about $5,000.

Barking of the dog, which was kept in the garage, awakened Edwin Henderson, a son. Father and son tried to save their faithful dog until flames scorched them and forced them to abandon the rescue.

GIRL'S 'MURDER STORY' RETOLD FOR JURY

Lawrence, Sept. 23.—The conduct of Mary Cwiekla, one of the defendants in the Griffin murder trial, when she was taken to the scene of the crime by police was described to the jury in Superior Court today by State Detective Richard Griffin.

"Do you remember waiting in the car with Reed while Nolin was in the store?" she was asked upon arriving at the scene, according to the detective.

"My God! how can I ever forget it!" was her reply, Griffin said.

Griffin also recounted the story of his first interviews with the two youths, Herman Reed and Lee J. Nolin, after their arrest in Hartford, Ct., shortly after the murder of the Groveland storekeeper. Nolin and Reed are on trial for murder, while Miss Cwiekla, 18, sweetheart of Nolin, is being tried as an accessory after the fact.

THEY HEARD SHOT.

"It was two weeks after the murder when other police and myself took Mary Cwiekla to the scene," testified Griffin.

"She said: 'Here is the place where Nolin got out, while Reed and I sat in the car with the engine running. I heard a shot. I turned to Reed and said it was an auto, but he said it was a shot.'

"I asked her what happened immediately afterward, and she replied she didn't know what to do. 'Was you heard a shot,' I prompted. 'Yes, but what could I do, get out and walk?' she retorted.

COURT WARNS JURY.

"Next I took her to the filling station, and she said that was where Nolin first got out that night.'

Judge Quinn cautioned the jurors to remember that they were to consider only the holdup and killing of the storekeeper and no other holdups of that night. Defense counsel were objecting to mention of the filling station holdup. Judge Quinn also stated that the statements of each defendant were to be considered only as against that one, and not against the other two.

"I interviewed Reed at his brother's place in Waterbury, Ct., where he was arrested," went on Griffin. "Then I took him to the police station in his car. He at first denied being in Massachusetts but later admitted he was here with Nolin.

"I WAS DRINKING."

"I did not know any man was going to be robbed and I didn't know anybody was killed. I was drinking," Reed said. I told him he was wrong, nobody was drunk in that party. He said, 'Well, I had a few drinks and didn't know what I was doing.'"

Griffin then told of interviewing Nolin at the county jail in Hartford and said the prisoner pretended not to know what it was all about.

"I refused to take an unfair advantage of him and told him plainly what we had," said the detective. "I told him we had evidence he committed the crime, told him of the gun found in his room, and that the death bullet fitted that gun. He admitted he had taken the gun from Reed and said, 'This is more serious than I thought.'

SAID HE WAS THERE.

"Nolin finally admitted being around here with the girl but declared she was not in it. He admitted being at his mother's house but denied being in an automobile even leaving the vicinity of the murder.

"I contradicted him and told him he was, that we had witnesses to prove. Then he admitted he was in the touring car in question but said he knew nothing about the hold-up and shooting."

HASTE TO WED KILLS BABY, HURTS 6

Hartford, Ct., Sept. 23.—Love's impatience at the five-day delay imposed by the statutes of Massachusetts for all those contemplating matrimony brought John J. Davis, 28, of Dorchester, Mass., speeding in an automobile to Hartford last June in the hope that he might be married at once.

Before he got out of the State he found that the same law prevailed here, fatally injured a 10-months-old baby in a Thompsonville automobile accident and injured himself and fiancee, Miss Alberta Stabb of Cambridge, Mass., so badly that they have been unable to marry since. This was revealed in the Superior Court yesterday when Davis was presented on a charge of reckless driving.

After Judge John R. Booth heard all the circumstances he said he did not know what to do with the case and postponed sentence.

Whatever the sentence, Davis still faces the civil side of the accident as defendant to suits totalling $50,000 damages.

Bite yourself an Alphabet

My dear, pretzeleering is so educational

Really, you know, this younger generation is SUCH a problem. Why Junior just simply COULDN'T learn his letters until we PRETZELIZED him. Showed him how to BITE his alphabet. Simply MARVELOUS the progress he's making. You should SEE him spell out:

MAMA

Juniors bite them. Then they eat them. There's no age limit for pretzeleering, particularly if you bite things out of O-So-Guds, made by Uneeda Bakers.

They're crispy, and crunchy, and salty. They're good to eat and good for all who eat them.

Try O-So-Guds with soup, with salad, with cheese. Serve them with tea and iced drinks. Have them handy for between-meal nibbling.

The up-and-coming grocer in your neighborhood has plenty of pretzels made by Uneeda Bakers. Ask him.

Middleboro, Sept. 23.—Ice cream and cookies was the principal diet of little Geurea Mussells, Jr., twelve of Pamcroft avenue, Reading, dur ing the ten days that he selected to live in the wide-open spaces, it was revealed today when police picked up the runaway in the woodsnear Lakeview Hospital.

"How did you live?" he was asked. "Well," he confided, "I had some money when I left home. I bought a blanket and then I made some more money picking cranberries. I spent a lot of my new found wealth —ice cream and cookies."

DRY RADIO POWER DEVICES

The Standard Charger for radio "A" batteries is Balkite

The accepted radio "A" power supply is an "A" storage battery and charger. The standard charger for radio "A" batteries is Balkite. Since the first Balkite Charger was put on the market 5 years ago over ¾ of a million have been purchased.

This overwhelming popularity is based on performance. The Balkite Charger has no tubes, nothing to burn out or replace. It is a permanent piece of equipment. The electrolytic rectification which it uses is so reliable that Balkite Chargers are today standard on the signal systems of most of the railroads of the country.

The Balkite Charger is noiseless in operation. In most cases it can be used during reception. This makes possible continuous or trickle charging, with its added convenience. With a Balkite Charger on trickle charge your "A" battery is always at full power.

And the evaporation of liquid shuts off the charger if you should leave it on during a long absence, thus protecting your battery from overcharging. This automatic cut-off is exclusive with Balkite. Ask your dealer.

Three models to suit every requirement.

Isadora Was Deaf to Harry Thaw's Love

(Fred Toye, of the Boston Evening American staff, was an intimate friend of Isadora Duncan for seventeen years and for seven years directed her theatrical appearances in this country and Europe. Here is the eighth installment of his splendidly told story of her unparalleled life.)

THE LIFE AND LOVES OF ISADORA DUNCAN.
By FRED TOYE.
Chapter 8.

IN Paris there was presented to Isadora an American youth who was to figure as principal in one of the most staggering tragedies in the history of the American courts. Son of a multi-millionaire American railroad and steamship magnate, the young man was squandering fabulous sums on women of the stage and the opera. Paris rang with accounts of his $50,000 dinner given to Cleo de Merodio, Otero, Yvonne de Treville and other famous professional beauties.

His name was mentioned in connection with the attempted suicide of a beautiful young widow, the countess Louise de Mortane.

The young man was Harry K. Thaw of Pittsburgh.

He had caught a glimpse of the graceful nymph at Newport. He found a way to get himself invited to the soirees where she danced in Paris.

Presently, passionately, he cast his heart and his fortune at her feet. Not as offerings to entice surrender into a condition of easy camaraderie but as a plain, straightforward every-day proposal of marriage.

Perhaps the emotional, neurotic Thaw, dazzled by the frail nymph became the quotations of the Persian poet really thought with Omar that "A book of verses underneath the bough,

A jug of wine, a loaf of bread—and thou
Beside me singing in the wilderness—
O wilderness were paradise enow."

Isadora, however, was already giving vent to her life-long purpose, that of living altogether fifty young girls who would devote themselves to the new art of the Dance, "renouncing every other sensation."

As in previous and prophetic of the new art movement, she, even more than her future devotees, must renounce all save her passion for the new form of beauty in movement.

Furthermore, she let him know, the young millionaire did not possess the qualifications needed for the husband of a woman of her disposition and tastes.

Yet furthermore, again, she laid before him his hectic and purposeless career.

"Ah, make the most of what we yet may spend
Before we, too, into the dust descend.
Dust unto dust and under dust to lie—
Sans wine, sans song, sans singer and sans end."

That, she said, might be the young specialist's philosophy, but it was emphatically not hers. Life for her had purpose. Mere empty living, without inspired achievement, was the direct mockery. With little ceremony she sent the youth about his business.

Back once more in London the girl took up her work. She was still dancing to the verses of Omar, and fluttering about in pretty, flower-like dances which have become the heritage of her imitators and which she grew to scorn with all her force.

Beauty, grace, charm and novelty of her dance concept in brought her great esteem. The Westminster Gazette spoke of the Isadora Duncan of 1900 as "Aphrodite's hand-maid, bright as gold."

Another London newspaper writer declared that "the great god Pan is not dead. One of his nymphs or dryads has survived to show us that the noblest intention the richest

LEAGUE CLEARS WAY FOR U. S.

Geneva, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The United States government will have an opportunity to participate in the elaboration of the system of arbitration and security pacts simultaneously with its co-operation with the League of Nations in the achieving of progressive disarmament.

In preparing its general report to the assembly of the League today the disarmament commission decided to change the original plan restricting the study of arbitration and security to countries which are members of the League to permit non-members, if they so desire, to be represented on the special committee of the League's preparatory disarmament commission.

This special committee will seek to develop arbitration and security as matters pertinent to any reduction of armaments.

UNITARIANS LEAVE FOR LENOX CONVENTION

A number of prominent Greater Boston Unitarians left today for Lenox for the seventh annual convention of the Unitarian Laymen's League which will be conducted there. It will continue until Sunday afternoon and a number of prominent figures in science and theology will address the gathering.

Among the speakers will be Professor Michael I. Pupin of Columbia, a noted scientist and inventor. Others scheduled to speak are: Professor Julius Lore Sharp, of Hingham professor of English at Boston University, the Rev. Sydney B. Snow of Boston, and the Rev. Louis C. Cornish of Cambridge, president of the American Unitarian Association.

VANISHED GIRL 'GOT A JOB'

The police have been asked to search for Katherine Asbury, fifteen, of No. 23 Greenville street, Roxbury, who disappeared September 19.

The girl, who was placed in care of a woman at the Roxbury address by her father, who lives in Vermont, sent word through the mail a day or two after her disappearance, that she was safe and well. She wrote:

"I have got a job and have gone to work. Do not try to find me.'

At the time she dropped out of sight she wore a red coat, but a few days later was seen in Roxbury wearing one of blue. She is described as being 5 feet 1 inch tall, with dark brown bobbed hair, wearing a blue linen dress, blue tam and red coat at the time she left home.

DIXIE GIRL REQUIRED LUXURIES; STOLE THEM

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Explaining that she was raised in luxury and could not resist the temptation of acquiring nice things, a young woman, who described herself as a member of a prominent family of southern Georgia, began an indeterminate sentence in the penitentiary today.

She was Mrs. Katherine Morgan Freeman, 24 years old, a native of Talahridge, Ga., and was sentenced upon a plea of guilty to passing worthless checks in several department stores.

SECOND SECTION

A Real Drama of Intrigue in Boston Theatrical Life After Curtain

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Becky McCloskey, young, good-looking, trying to make her way alone in Boston, finds herself without a position. Dan Scarlett, who lives by his wits, sees her huddled in a doorway and persuades her to go to dinner with him. Scarlett realizes that she has a beautiful voice and makes a bargain to finance her until she gets started if she will let him share her profits. Becky joins a chorus. Scarlett induces her to go to a party given by Boris Abelard on the stage that she may meet the rich John Estabrook, her uncle. At the party Becky is thrust into a fountain with her clothes on and faints. Abelard sends his guests away and has Becky taken care of. Months afterwards Becky meets Estabrook in the studio. She tells him she wishes he had never come. Estabrook finds himself interested in her and kisses her. She stands dazed before him and tells him she expected him to be different. Becky tells Estabrook her ideals of real love. Later she sings and Estabrook is astonished and greatly moved. Becky shows that she is in love with Estabrook.

CHAPTER 11.

BECKY said "goodnight" to Estabrook in the taxi, and, standing inside the door, watched the red tail light vanish down the deserted street.

Her heart was pounding painfully, her mind was in too great a whirl to admit coherent thought. It seemed impossible that less than a year ago she had been a little shop girl, a little shop-girl who gazed adoringly but hopelessly at the tall, brown man who came to the store with his brother.

If that had been true, was it possible that she, Becky McCloskey, had really been in that man's arms tonight? That she had told him she loved him? That, strangest of all, he had told her that he loved her? She felt bewildered, crushed by the splendor of the unbelievable truth.

Estabrook the aristocrat — and Becky McCloskey of the South End. It couldn't be true.

She ran quickly up the dark stairway, her heart pounding a rythm for her feet. She wanted to be quiet, to be alone with her kitten and her doll, those silent, comprehending companions of her bitterest hours, to muse with them, upon her too great good fortune.

Sometimes, when food had been scarce and her body wearied almost beyond endurance, she had wondered whether virtue was worth the price to be paid for it. But now she knew the answer had come. For this, and only for this, she had waited—that she might be clean-cut and beyond reproach for the man her heart had chosen.

Thank God she was free, she thought as she climbed, more slowly, the last flight of steps.

Then she paused.

Sitting on the landing of the fourth floor, his knees crossed and a cigarette dangling from the corner of his mouth, sat Dan Scarlett. Becky's heart seemed to stand still.

"How did you get in?" she began led in a low voice.

"Walked in Snipe as keeping track of your actions, Becky my girl. Simple as Simple Simon."

"You've been drinking, Dan Scarlett, or you wouldn't have dared do such a thing. How do you get that way, anyhow? You hop it 'Quick."

Scarlett remained motionless.

"Get out, Dan. D'you hear? It's terrible late."

"I came to talk to you, my dear, and I'm going to do just that. Let's go to your room."

"No you don't," Becky whispered fiercely, barring Scarlett's way as he started up the ball.

"Oh yes I do. D'you want to have a scene out here in the hall? D'you want to get thrown out of the house? Nice story to tell your new boy friend tomorrow — put out of your house. Go and unlock your door."

Becky, trembling, fumbled for her key.

"Well, you better say what you have to say quick, and get it over. And be quiet about it, please, Dan. She turned the knob softly. "And what do you know about boy-friend of mine, anyway? You gone into the detective business by any chance?"

"I have my own ways of finding things out, and they're good, and they're prompt." Scarlett replied, shutting the door and putting his back against it. "Pleasant little coffin you live in. This the best you can afford?"

"It's none of your business how I want to spend my money or save it, either. What did you want to say?"

"It's time you and I came to a show down, young lady. I've been playing patience with you for a year. Now I'm through. Did you make a hit with this whatisname—Lasbrook?"

Becky made no answer, pressing her lips tight together.

"Silence means assent. Right-o. Scarlett took the cigarette from his mouth and regarded the glowing tip. "If you play this right," he said, "everything'll be fine. You'll get your man, your little god, rather, and with a little sense, you ought to get a couple of hundred thousand besides. He's rich as the devil. All I want is to settle my percentage, understand?"

Becky faced him with clenched hands. "Yes, I understand," she flung back. "And I say no, see? No with a capital N." Her voice softened. "Dan, try to get this. I'm really through with you. I have been for a long time. You can't mix love and business, Dan."

"All right, all right," Scarlett said evenly. He flung down the butt of the cigarette and crushed it venomously with his foot. "First you can't get backing because you don't like the stage door Johnnies. And now you love this Johnny too much. Please Turn to Page 23, Column 4.

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.)—An effort to improve his radio aerial for better reception of the Tunney-Dempsey fight broadcasting caused the death of Stephen Yost, 34. He fell four stories to the roof of an adjacent building and was dead when a physician arrived.

POLICE FIRE AT FLEEING AUTOISTS

Three men in an automobile, under suspicion of preparing to hold up a lunchroom in Andrew square, South Boston, escaped capture today after a half dozen policemen chased them five miles to the vicinity of Harvard square, Cambridge. Several shots were fired by the police.

The pursuers secured the registration number of the fugitive machine and began an immediate hunt for its owner. Boston police records showed a report of the car having been stolen.

During the chase one policeman, in a commandeered taxicab beamed the trio in hat, by a sudden burst of speed, during which two wheels went on on the sidewalk, they headed him.

ESCAPE AMID BULLETS.

Patrolman William J. Mahoney of Station 6, South Boston, on duty in Andrew square, saw the machine enter the square, circle slowly around and disappear. Five minutes later it returned again and repeated the first performance. There are several allnight lunchrooms there and police believe they planned to stage a holdup in one of them.

On the second appearance of the car, Mahoney stepped into the street and signalled the driver to proceed. The latter applied the gas and the machine shot over South Andrew street, at high speed. Commandeering a passing taxicab, Mahoney gave chase. The pursuit led to Massachusetts avenue, into the South End.

At the corner of Columbus avenue Mahoney's machine drew up ahead of the other and suddenly swerved to the right behind the other car into the curbing. But the driver of the other car, driving up on the sidewalk, eluded capture and the chase was on again.

At this point Mahoney opened fire, sending four bullets after the other car.

AUTOISTS RACE AWAY.

Patrolman James V. Crowley of the Back Bay station took up the chase at Massachusetts avenue, also using a commandeered taxicab. At Boylston street, three other Back Bay officers joined the chase.

Crossing Harvard bridge, at mile-a-minute speed, several more shots were sent after the sedan. The race went through Central square Cambridge, to Harvard square and then along Mount Auburn street for a few blocks. The fugitive machine shot into a side street at that point and escaped.

Cambridge police were rushed out from the Central square and Brattle square stations to lend any assistance that might be needed.

3 SENTENCED TO LONG TERMS FOR BURGLARY

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 23 (A.P.)

Prison sentence of 14 to 15 years was imposed on Joseph Eno's, alias Leon, and one of four to six years on George Jargalis, wife John McCarthy, alias Bosky, was sentenced to the Massachusetts reformatory by Judge Callahan today after they had pleaded guilty to breaking into an ice cream factory here last June. All three are from New York and are wanted for New Hampshire robberies.

GOVERNOR TO GET HER LETTER

A pathetic letter written by a heart-broken mother in far off Crete may be the instrument which will break a door through the walls of the Bridgewater State Hospital for James Mantair, serving a life sentence for the murder of Annie Mullins in Arlington in March, 1908.

The lifer is now seeking parole, and his mother's letter, which will be placed in the hands of Governor Fuller within a few days, is expected to be one of the chief assets Mantair has in his appeal for clemency.

One man who is working tooth and nail to bring about the release of his boyhood friend is Peter Dolcey, convicted of the same crime and released on parole a few years ago.

"My greatest hope will be fulfilled if I live to see the day when Jimmie Mantair will pass from behind the walls of that hospital a free man. I have always maintained that both of us were victims of an unfortunate miscarriage of justice but some times one gets friends and some don't."

Dolcey declared that he was ready and willing to do anything that will relieve his friend from behind the prison bars just as he did 18 years ago when he had an opportunity to testify against him and save himself from prison. Dolcey spent the best 11 years of his life at Charlestown because he would not turn State's evidence.

At the Bridgewater hospital Mantair recently but hopefully checks off each day on the calendar, and the man has supreme faith in Governor Fuller's granting him release.

He has been a "model prisoner" of the institution, and the officials do not oppose his parole. Mantair was overjoyed when word of the decision was brought to him.

'PAYCOCK' WEDS HIS 'JUNO'

London, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—That unconventional man, Sean O'Casey, who quit laying bricks to write plays, was married today in London's Greenwich Village to Eileen Carey in a wedding costume as unconventional as the rest of his life.

The Irish playwright, whose play "Juno and the Paycock" brought him fame and more money than he ever earned putting one brick on top of another, led his beautiful bride to the altar of the church in Chelsea in a lounge suit, a pullover and a soft collar.

Miss Carey, strikingly pretty actress who has appeared in several of O'Casey's plays, was dressed in blue; a blue coat trimmed with light grey fur covered a dress of the same shade and was capped with a hat of the same color.

THINKS 'AL' CAN CARRY SOUTH

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Sept. 23—Governor "Al" Smith of New York would carry the South if nominated by the Democrats for the presidency, but his nomination would start a schismatic movement which might eventually split the Democratic party, Representative Huddleston (D.) of Alabama, declared today.

Huddleston declared the South's attitude toward the New York Governor has been misrepresented. His opinion is not based upon political friendliness to Smith. He opposes Smith and predicted that the two-thirds rule would defeat him in the convention.

"Smith would carry the Catholic and wet vote of Northern and Eastern States," he said, "and now there undoubtedly would be a movement of dissent in the South, this probably would not cost him more than one or two States."

Huddleston declared that the South opposed Smith "not because he is wet, but because he is a representative of the alien and hyphenate elements of Eastern cities which [illegible]

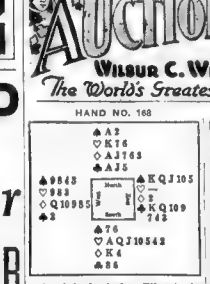
HAND NO. 168



South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In Monday's issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Bidding

Despite his four honors in Hearts and his galaxy of face cards, South's hand does not warrant a redd.

Salient Points of the Play

Tricks 1 and 2. North plays the 8 instead of the 2, in order not to discourage another lead, and then plays the 7 to show that he has more of the suit and desires his partner to cash in.

Tricks 3, 4 and 5. Declarer before parting to Trick 3 considers the possibilities of his hand. He has already lost two tricks and must lose a trump trick unless the Queen and Jack happen to be alone in one of the opponents' hands, an unlikely event. He must also lose a Club trick unless he can effect a discard of one losing Club. The only way he can make such discard is by establishing Dummy's Diamonds. To establish this suit and bring in its long card of cards will be a simple matter if the outstanding six Diamonds are divided 3—3. But the most likely division figures mathematically to be 4—2. If so divided, Declarer must be able, after taking three rounds of Diamonds, to enter the Dummy hand in order to lead Diamonds the fourth time, which would establish a third trick. Dummy must have still another entry. That is, the successful outcome of his plan depends upon his having two entries in Dummy, besides the Ace and King of Diamonds. These entries exist in a trump, with which he can ruff a Heart, and the King of Clubs. Declarer determines therefore so to attempt the establishment of the Diamond suit, trumping the third round.

Tricks 6 and 7. Since only one trump is required in Dummy in furtherance of Declarer's plan, Declarer takes two rounds of trumps.

Trick 8. Declarer gives Dummy a Heart ruff for the lead of another Diamond, which will establish a card of the suit, if North can over-ruff Declarer's pan fails.

Trick 11. Dummy, in with a Club lead's another Diamond, upon which Declarer [illegible]

SHARKEY TO BE TUNNEY'S NEXT OPPONENT

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

SPEED, ACCURACY, VIGOR . . . THE DAY IF HAPPENS

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN — FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1927

Dempsey Is Convinced "They Can't Come Back"

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Statement by Jack Dempsey:

"There's not much for me to say except that I was beaten again tonight by a man who demonstrated beyond all question of doubt that he is the better man.

"I felt in the seventh that the championship had come back to me, that I had shattered that old stuff about they can't come back; but the gameness of Tunney, his recuperative powers and his generalship saved him then, won him the fight and perpetuates him as the champion of the world.

"I take my hat off to him. He's a real champion, worthy of the name and title."

THE BUBBLE BUSTER

Tunney Says Fighting Enabled Him to Win

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Gene Tunney said after his fight with Jack Dempsey:

"I don't think there should be any doubt in the people's mind after tonight who is the better man. I won my title in Philadelphia by boxing Dempsey. I retained it by fighting him. I never felt that I was in danger even in the seventh round. It was then that all my months of training and careful year around conditioning came out. My head cleared rapidly and I was ready for anything

"Dempsey fought gamely, I'll say that for him. But I have no hesitation in saying that if we fought a dozen times the outcome would be the same."

JACK SHARKEY WILL BE GENE'S NEXT OPPONENT

By NICK FLATLEY.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Gene Tunney is a great champion, a wonderful fighter, with the heart of a lion and the brain of a lawyer. He proved that to the complete satisfaction of the great ringside throng in sport history when he battered down Jack Dempsey and set himself to collect another million a year from Jack.

Next September, unless all signs fail, Gene will be boxing Jack Sharkey for the crown, and that be likely to be a real fight between two clever, shifty, nifty young warriors.

Jack Sharkey is a big fighter to be sure, but he is no match for Tunney in a finish fight as he proved tonight.

Nick Flatley

Tunney was knocked out in the seventh round as sure as shooting, under the old rules of the ring. He was on his back for ten seconds and more. Your correspondent watched the referee, expecting, to hear the fatal ten, to watch the upraised arm that means a knockout.

At the count of nine we peered through the gloom of the Soldier Field ringside to see Dempsey, to all appearances, tonight what he was in ten rounds he would throw over one mighty punch. We thought he was. We saw Tunney waver, stumbling on the resin dust of the ring and the same mob was howling for blood as on gathering ever

There have peculiar rules out here in Illinois, however. It seems that the count cannot start until the boy is knocked on opponent down and not a neutral corner.

Dempsey, the battering man killer, of the old days, forgot the new rules in the heat of the battle. He sailed into Tunney ever against the ropes. He sunk a right into the body and beat Gene back. Then he brought that left across.

He landed on Tunney's chin for Gene's knees buckled, his stomach muscles flabby as a rag. Dempsey would open his mouth to roar and Tunney would be gone. It was an old fighter and a young fighter and the old fighter looked the genius right there. He shouted the referee. He waited until Tunney could get up, opposite Dempsey in the ring, the master boxer against the super slugger—and Tunney won.

Dempsey had the golden opportunity in the seventh round to regain his title and perhaps was with a one or two punches of winning. But in this crisis of Tunney's reign as king of pugilism his boxing skill, his generalship and his keen ring brain thwarted the slugger and the boxer remains on the pinnacle of pugilism.

There seemed to have been cause for alarm for Dempsey when after Dempsey knocked down Tunney, Tex Lempey partisans put up a loud claim of a long count." The non-partisans agree that Tunney was on the floor fifteen seconds, but if that is supposed it was for a referee's decision to go on a count of ten as soon as Tunney was up.

Dempsey had staggered Tunney almost in Dempsey's corner, and Tunney jumped into his own corner as I was ordered by the referee to go to a neutral corner. Tunney did not start until Dempsey was at the farthest point of the ring, and the referee ordered Dempsey

Gene Tunney Sent Another Letter to Dempsey Marked Finis

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

Dempsey Has No Alibi, And Hangs Up Gloves

By JACK DEMPSEY.

(Copyright, 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 23.—My ring career came to its end when my dreams of regaining the title ended in defeat.

I bow to Gene Tunney, a better fighter and a great champion.

I have no excuses to offer, no alibis. But I am at this moment confused as to how long was the count that Tunney got when I flattened him in the seventh round. I thought it was a long, long count that he received but Dave Barry, the referee, was fair in all other ways and I feel that he was fair in the count.

My golden chance came in the seventh and I blew it.

The ring strategy of Tunney never showed to finer advantage than in that seventh when he got up floundering, continued to flounder and yet had smooth generalship in keeping around the ring to save himself with the bell.

I started slowly as I had planned to do. I fought a cautious battle but not, in thinking it all over I guess perhaps I was a little too careful and too cautious. I might have accomplished more by rushing Tunney from the outset.

TUNNEY brought into the ring a harder right hand punch than he had in Philadelphia, one with a little more sting and power in it. He kept shaking me up with it all throughout the battle and it was that hand, not his left, that whipped me.

I went into that ring fit and ready; went in there tuned to the minute. Perfect condition was mine. I gave the best I had to give, but it wasn't enough to beat the man who whipped me before and who tonight, and before tonight, wrote into the records that line:

"They can't come back."

There usually isn't much that a man in defeat can say unless to sneak plainly of excuses. All the excuses I can really offer have been offered. I was whipped fairly and squarely by the man who mastered me in Philadelphia and again scored conclusively his supremacy tonight.

TUNNEY HEARD REFEREE COUNT

By JAMES J. KILGALLEN.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Champion Gene Tunney declared today that he could have gained his feet at the count of one, had he cared to, when Jack Dempsey floored him in the seventh round of their thrilling battle last night at Soldier Field.

"I heard the referee count one and could have stood up then had I thought it advisable," said Tunney, who hasn't a scratch to show his part in the fight. "I conserved, however, to get the most of my recovery period. I watched Dempsey and listened to the referee. I was fully aware of what was transpiring."

Tunney decided to hold off his scheduled departure for New York until tomorrow in order that he may keep a dinner engagement with Mayor William Hale Thompson.

Dempsey, meanwhile, remained in seclusion at the hotel apartment of his wife, Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress. Through his personal physician Dempsey announced he would not leave the hotel today and had no further statements to make.

Kearns at Ringside But Only as Spectator

Chicago, Sept. 22 (A.P.).—Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, but last year listed as a nemesis accountable in great measure for the sorry exhibition Jack made against Gene Tunney, hove into Chicago today to witness the second edition of Dempsey versus Tunney.

Kearns came in without any ulterior motives, he said, intending to

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—

My Dear Public: I don't like to say "I told you so," or anything like that, but I would like you to give attention to the fact that I picked the winner of the Tunney-Dempsey bout. I notice that Jack Conway also had Tunney to out-score Dempsey, but he doesn't deserve any credit for this as I'm the bird who slipped him the right dope.

The real credit goes to the fine beer they have out here in Chicago. After I had visited the camps of Tunney and Dempsey, I was up in the air as to who to pick to win. I then visited one of those upstairs beer joints where you save a dime on a bottle of beer. After I had put away a dozen or so beers, I remembered an interview I once had with Tunney at Stroudsburgh. That was before the first Dempsey-Tunney mill.

I ASKED Tunney if he was afraid of being kayoed by Dempsey.

"Why should I fear Dempsey?" asked Gene. "He has only two fists and is human like the rest of them. I passed through the U-boat zone during the war and was unmarked. I was also in France and wasn't wounded. I believe I am a man of destiny. I'll beat Dempsey or anybody else."

So I picked Tunney. As Jack Conway shares the same room with me out here in Chi, I let him in on my dope and he stole my stuff. But I suppose Jack has to make a living like the rest of us and so I won't do any squawking.

I also didn't give the Dempsey-Sharkey bout the weight it received from most of the experts. I knew that if it hadn't been for the low punching in that bout that Sharkey would have won.

Bill McDonnell, assistant district attorney who is studying gun play in Chi, also picked Tunney to win. I heard him trying to convince the gang in the North Side that Gene would win. But they wouldn't be convinced and went broke on Jack whom they believed would come through with a knockout.

TUNNEY didn't have any cinch winning. Dempsey put up one of the greatest battles of his career. The left hook he nailed Tunney on the whiskers in the seventh round was a pippin. If Gene wasn't such a marvelous defensive fighter, he would have been knocked cold when he regained his feet.

The fighting marine proved he was a real champion when he got up from the floor, came on and won. My heart went out for Gene when fighting with his back against the wall, he tipped Dempsey over in the eighth frame. He did a frightful job on Dempsey during the last two sessions.

I'll be on my way home on the Twentieth Century today. Chi is a great town, but I'm still strong for Boston even though it only has crab beer.

Opinions of Various Experts on Long Count

In line with many of the recent heavyweight fights the bout between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey leaves a bad taste. The question all surrounds the count allowed Tunney in the seventh round when Dempsey floored him.

Following are the opinions of the various experts who witnessed the bout.

"Tunney received a long count. This was due to Dempsey's failure to retire to a neutral corner at the knockdown."—Jack Conway, Boston American.

"Watches held by the men who helped me in the corner showed that Tunney was on the floor for fifteen seconds in the seventh round."—Leo F. Flynn.

* * *

"He sat there a long time but in reality it was only nine and a fraction seconds by the official count."—David J. Walsh, Universal News Sports Editor.

* * *

"Dreier was asked by me, 'You admit you counted thirteen over Tunney?' The official timer replied, 'Yes.'"—Damon Runyon, Universal Staff Correspondent.

* * *

"And the nine seconds that followed were an eternity: probably the most gripping moments that sport of boxing has ever known."—David Egan, Boston Globe.

"If this really happened it was due to Dempsey's failure to go to a neutral corner as soon as Tunney went down."—James J. Corbett, former heavyweight champion of the world.

* * *

"The count was slow, but that's one of the things that happen when officials are too careful, and too many, and the boys hesitate to get down to business."—Nick Flatley, sports editor, Boston American.

What Does It Profit a Man?

WHEN our Style Committee presented for my approval the new line for Fall, they told me the history and reason for every new Style introduced.

The Sales Manager said this shoe was a copy of Mr. So-And-So's, and that one was a reproduction of another high-grade manufacturer's popular model, etc., etc.

When I asked for the original shoe that they copied, and put them side-by-side, I couldn't tell which was which, without looking at the labels.

Our factory Manager showed me one shoe that he had cut apart to find out how, and what, it was made of. And our Upper and Sole Leather Buyer convinced me the material in the Regal reproduction was exactly the same or just as good as in the original high-price model.

The actual evidence "SOLD" me, and I thought it was the simplest and strongest way to convince you of the real Value we put in a Regal Shoe.

I suggested that we put one of the original $11.65 shoes in the window with a Regal reproduction for $6.60 right beside it, and give you the specifications and ask you to compare the shoes.

Now this is just what we've done. We've purchased and reproduced a number of the most popular styles for Street, Dress and Sport that are made by High-Price Manufacturers and sold by High-Price Retailers. AND THEY'RE IN OUR STORES TODAY.

I don't believe there's another manufacturer in this country giving this Value for this Price. And there's only one way to do it. The Regal Policy is the answer. Miss Orcutt to Meet Mrs. Horn in Finals

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn of Kansas City joined Miss Maureen Orcutt of New York in the finals for the women's golf championship of the United States by defeating Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser of Ottawa, Canada, one up.

Two down going to the 14th hole, Mrs. Fraser won the next three holes to square the match but Mr. Horn again went one up at the 14th and when she won the 15th she was up with two to go.

The Kansas City lass won the 16th in par and Mrs. Fraser, seeming to continue the fight to the finish hole. At the 18th hole two trying putts were need to halve, Mrs. Fraser getting down from 12 feet and Mrs. Horn from four.

The other Canadian semi-finalist, Miss Ada MacKenzie was eliminated by Miss Orcutt, Metropolitan champion, two up and one to play.

Dave Barry Says Count Was O. K.

Chicago, Sept. 23 (A.P.)—Dave Barry was the third man in the ring when Dempsey and Tunney battled for the heavyweight championship of the world, it was revealed today in a statement issued by Lawrence Said no doubt about a foul or protest over the seventh round.

"It struck me and Chief Tunney as down for over 10 seconds, but that was Dempsey's fault. He made no effort to get away from the man as he is supposed to when he regains the knockdown. He understood the rule to do that.

"The commissioners had so instructed me and the fighters agreed to abide by such a ruling when they stood up for instructions just before the fight started.

"Tunney was guilty of striking low several times, not intentionally, and one of these had effect on Tunney. But the rule that we have as at ringside is that a fighter who is down must get a chance to recover when he regains the knockdown. He understood that was

Tunney Says He Never Was in Danger in Fight

By GENE TUNNEY,
World's Heavyweight Champion.

Copyright, 1927, King Features Synd., Inc.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—I have kept a promise that I made with myself a year ago at Philadelphia.

I won the world's heavyweight title then by boxing. I retained it by fighting.

I pledged myself that I would beat Dempsey this time—beat him so decisively that there would be no doubt in anyone's mind as to my right to the heavyweight championship of the world.

Dempsey gave me a good battle—much better than he did in Philadelphia. He deserves his own peculiar niche in the hall of pugilistic fame, for Dempsey was fighting with all his heart. He was desperate. He put, I believe, every last ounce of all that has gone into making a great fighting machine into that effort to beat me down in the seventh round. But long months of training told in my favor.

I NEVER felt that I was in danger, although the men in my corner had a worried look when I went down. Youth and strength will always tell. It is the way of all flesh. I knew after the first round that I had Dempsey.

I knew further that it would be only a question of time when I would knock him out. Twelve rounds would have done it, I think.

Twice I thought I had him, but he escaped more, it seemed to me from his tired slouch than anything else.

As I watched him from my corner between rounds, it seems to me that Dempsey's strength was slowly being sapped.

He was a great fighter, no one can gainsay that, but I was out after Dempsey this time, and with venom.

I'll make no secret about that. I wanted to punish him, and punish him thoroughly. I wanted to make this a battle of gloves, instead of words, and I did.

TIMER ADMITS 13 SEC. COUNT

a fairly even fight as I saw it going into the tenth, with the knock down weighing strongly in Dempsey's favor.

But all through the tenth Tunney battered Dempsey until the old ex-champion's face streamed blood from wounds over his eyes and from bruised lips.

I imagine that the subsequent months will develop much argument over that count when not more than the bat of an eye represented the time difference running against Dempsey's recovery of his title.

I doubt that it will produce another match between the two, however, for Tunney demonstrated what he proved at Philadelphia a year ago that bar an unexpected punch he is easily Dempsey's master at the boxing game.

MANY FAVORED DRAW.

As showing the wide difference of opinion over these pugilistic encounters, however, some of the spectators thought a draw would have been fair to both men, though they probably wouldn't have cared to have had much money invested in Dempsey's chances in a longer battle.

"Take a lead, take a lead," implored Bid Duffy and Leo Flynn from Dempsey's corner through the ninth, sensing how a fight that seemed to be surely won was slipping away from them as Tunney piled up point after point, while Dempsey was lumbering wearily at Tunney the old lava beneath the bronzed body of the Manassa mauler failing to respond to his call.

They meant for Dempsey to throw punches.

"Take a lead!" they clamored, more feebly, through the tenth. They seemed to realize that the victory, and the title that gave $1,000,000 to Tunney against the $450,000 to Dempsey, had gone beyond recall.

And it had appeared such a sure thing in the seventh, with Tunney grovelling on the floor, and Dempsey apparently as strong as a bull.

FIGHT LAGGED AT TIMES.

Small wonder that they looked so downcast when the champion's gloved hand was lifted in token of triumph at the close of the tenth. Small wonder that even Dempsey also jerked away from the referee immediately after shaking hands with Tunney.

Outside of the seventh round there was scarcely enough excitement to repay the 150,000 spectators for the $2,800,000 that George Tex Rickard, the "under-cover" promoter of the event estimates was in the box offices, an estimate that is probably high. George Gett, a Chicago business man, was supposed to be the promoter, but it was Rickard's show.

For three rounds they both were so cautious that had it been a preliminary they would have been booed by the crowd. Dempsey had dropped his old style of tearing in, and was trying to make Tunney do the leading. The latter is supposed to be strictly a counter puncher, waiting on the other fellow's leads, but he frequently took the aggressive tonight.

And Dempsey finally abandoned his waiting policy, and began bobbing and crowding Tunney. Oddly enough, at times he even outboxed the master boxer Tunney kept missing him with his right hand smashes, though his left seldom failed to smear Dempsey's countenance.

Under the rules that prevail in Chicago when a man goes down, the official timekeeper at the ringside starts counting and the referee is supposed to pick up the count immediately.

JACK MISSES FINE CHANCE.

But a member of the boxing commission says that its rule is that the count does not start until the boxer who has knocked the other down is in the corner furthest from the fallen man.

Dempsey first went to his own corner, within a few feet of Tunney after the knockdown, then moved along the ropes over to a neutral corner as the Referee, Barry, pointed it out to him.

He was a little slow in following up his advantage as Tunney got to his feet, no doubt of that.

It is in defense that Tunney stands out. He wears a man down gradually, stabbing, stabbing, stabbing, patiently, methodically.

In this fight he was a boxer at his best, meeting a once great fighter slowed down to a walk, but still very dangerous.

LONG COUNT SAVED GENE.

From that standpoint, at least, it was a good fight. After the ring had been cleared, other phases of that seventh-round count came to light. Paul Beeler the official timekeeper, said that the count had gone to four before it was discovered that Dempsey wasn't in a neutral corner, and that then it was started all over again.

In other words, Tunney really had the benefit of a thirteen-second count, because Dempsey failed to observe the rule of the local commission, an error that may have cost him dear.

I would say that for at least nine seconds Tunney was thoroughly be-fogged as he knelt on the floor. The punch that staggered him back to the ropes was a long left hook to the chin.

He was not unconscious, but he was certainly dizzy. Dempsey acted calmly enough as he moved into his own corner, scarcely looking at the man on the floor, but the second hand of the clock moves rapidly, and those were precious seconds that Dempsey was losing. Perhaps Tunney could have gotten up just the same if the count had continued on from the four, at which it was discontinued, to the nine. That is not for me to say.

Then again the added four seconds may have been just the time he required to thoroughly clear his befogged brain. Who can tell?

Anyway, as I say we shall have plenty of argument. In fact, it has already started as this is written, which is after Armand Emanuel, of San Francisco, has licked George Larocco, of New York, and Martin Burke, of New Orleans, had belted Benny Krueger, of Germany, about, these affairs having been put on to close the show.

THE RING MAN OF DESTINY

GENE TUNNEY

"I believe I can defeat any man," says Tunney. He believes in his destiny to rule the prize ring. It appears that Gene is right.

WESTON TRIPLE THREAT AT B. C. THIS FALL

It seems almost sure that Al Weston will be a triple threat on the Boston College eleven this Fall. Its only weakness, that of kicking, has been practically overcome under the tutelage of Jack Mahoney, Holy Cross assistant.

Weston is still far from the peak of his punting ability. However, he has shown remarkable improvement during the past week. Coach Daley has tested all his varsity in booting the ball and Weston stands out as the best.

Bud Dower was giving Big Al a run for the job about a week ago in fact he looked better than Weston. Dower was lofting beautiful spirals and getting sufficient height and distance.

But he was so slow getting them off that the opposing line was always rushing his kicks. As a result he lost his art when punting under fire. His boots were being hurried and the variety gained but little ground.

Tunney to Spend His Life Helping American Youth

Chicago, Sept. 23.—Gene Tunney will devote the rest of his life to the betterment of American manhood, declared former Governor James Cox of Ohio.

"I happen to know that Gene has planned to spend the rest of his life in lecturing before American boys and young men on how to live," he said. "I've known him for years. He is perhaps the most misunderstood and perhaps the finest man in the world of sports. He has high ideals for America's youth."

Gene has planned to meet as many of the boys of this country as possible, ex-Governor Cox added. The champion wants to talk to them at Y. M. C. A. halls and everywhere else his talks can do some good.

Hints About Serving the Home Dinner

By MARTHA LEE.

WHEN you eat dinner at home seven days in the week, fifty-two weeks in the year—if anyone bats that average with restaurants and tea-rooms lurking around every corner)—a home dinner may sound to you like a commonplace affair.

If so, try eating dinner in restaurants and tea-rooms seven days in the week, for a few weeks, and see what charm clings about the very name of a "home-cooked" dinner.

Suppose we choose our menu first, for the home dinner, and then see how we should set the table to [illegible] our dinner. We will want our meal to be well-balanced appetizing and attractive, and if we have learned the lesson of war-time thrift, we will want it to be reasonably economical. Here is one suggestion.

Corn Bisque
Crisp Crackers
Sirloin Roast of Beef with Franconia Potatoes
Brown Gravy
Peas
Bread and Butter
Lettuce Salad with Russian Dressing
Pineapple Bread Pudding
Crackers and Cheese Coffee

On the left of the service [illegible] place two forks, [illegible] for meat and one for salad. Place the water glass at the point of the knife, the bread and butter plate above the service plate, a little to the left; and the butter spreader across the upper right hand side of the bread and butter plate with the blade turned toward the centre of the plate.

Corn Bisque—Scald one quart of milk in a double boiler with contents of one can of corn, chopped and one slice of onion. Mix three tablespoons of flour with one fourth cup of cold water to form a smooth paste and add to the scalded milk; then cook twenty minutes, stirring constantly at first, and afterward occasionally, and rub through a sieve. To contents add one-half cup of butter, bit by bit, and two teaspoons salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and one-eighth teaspoon paprika.

Franconia Potatoes—Prepare as for boiled potatoes, and parboil ten minutes; drain and place in the pan in which the meat is roasting; bake until soft, basting with fat in pan when basting the meat. The time required for baking is about forty minutes. Sweet potatoes are also excellent prepared in this way.

Pineapple Bread Pudding—Add two cups of hot milk to two cups of stale bread crumbs and allow to stand until cool. Beat two eggs, add one-half cup of sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt and three-fourths cup of well drained crushed pineapple. Combine the mixtures and pour into a greased baking dish. Bake in a slow oven until firm or about thirty minutes. Serve with a sauce made from the syrup drained from the pineapple.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

a family problem

IN every family there's one or more of these top-milk thieves. They love coffee. And naturally they want coffee at its best. So the rich "top of the bottle" goes into their morning cup.

Nice for the coffee drinkers—but not so good for the milk-drinking children of the family. Milk robbed of its top is pale, thin, poor milk—deprived of richness that growing bodies need. Children should drink whole milk.

But you can solve this family problem easily—in the same delicious way that millions of other coffee drinkers have solved it. Spare the top of the bottle—but cream-and-sugar your morning cup to smooth, golden, mellow perfection with Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk!

This is a blend of pure, fresh, full-cream country milk and finest sugar. Super-rich—because most of the water has been removed. Super-smooth—because the sugar is blended in by a method you can't equal at home. And super-economical—because it costs only one-half as much as sugar and cream used separately—and it will keep for days after the can is opened—even without ice!

Use Standard for cooking, too. It gives extra richness, smoothness and creaminess to any dish that requires both milk and sugar.

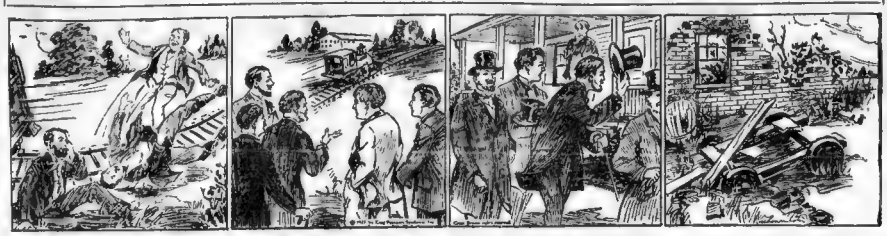
LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



Edison demonstrated his improved electric railway in many engineers representing various railroads. He would drive his engine forty miles an hour and it frequently jumped the track. One day the driver took it off the track and everybody tumbled out. Edison, who landed right side up, laughed and declared it a "beautiful accident."

Several special tests were made for some visitors from South America. They wanted an engine that would climb their steep mountain grades and replace the mules then used. A steep track was built and the engine climbed it easily. Then it was tested on sharp curves, and after much work it was kept from jumping the track.

At the end of the tests the South Americans were perfectly satisfied that Edison could meet their requirements. They then disappeared. In telling the story, Edison says: "I have never seen them since. As usual, I paid for the experiment." But such an experience could not dampen the ardor of the inventor for his electric railway work.

A student of Edisonia recently paid a visit to Menlo Park to see just what was left of the world-famous laboratories. The only traces he could find were part of a brick wall with an empty window, a part of the embankment where the electric railway had run, and a half-buried truck of one of the cars.

Do You Know—

The largest single copper crystal in the world was made in the laboratories of the General Electric Company during experiments to discover the latent properties of a single crystal metals. It weighs twelve pounds and the copper was found to conduct electricity 13 per cent. more efficiently than before. Also, it bends easily, but only once; bending scatters the atoms again.

In an attempt to study the effect of the atmosphere on wireless waves French scientists are planning to send a transmitter ten miles up into the air by means of a balloon. The apparatus will send out signals automatically.

Dr. Reed Discusses Meaning of 'Dog Days'

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

THERE is something interesting about "dog days," what the expression means and how it came about.

We generally associate the term with that period when it is presumed that rabies, or hydrophobia is most prevalent. It is thought to be the "mad dog" time. The time thus alluded to is always a period of great heat. But in the beginning it had nothing to do with "mad dogs."

Rabies, or hydrophobia, was one of the first diseases to be recognized and described in the whole history of medicine. The classics are full of records of it, and it was called "hydrophobia" by Celsus, a Roman physician, in the first century A. D. It has therefore been known for more than two thousand years. But happily, we know much more about it now than then. We know the germ of the disease, thanks to Pasteur, and that is the key to the situation.

The time which it takes to develop after the bite is long, but varies considerably. When it does appear it takes the form of very painful nervous symptoms, generally convulsions, followed by paralysis and death. Very few cases recover by themselves. But if they are treated in time with the proper serum antidote the disease is forestalled and does not go any further.

The best way to avoid the danger and anxiety of being infected is to keep out of the way of all dogs, especially during the hot months. Children are liable to catch it through being bitten by infected pets, and if it is not possible to avoid keeping a dog or cat, care should be taken at least that the pet is not allowed to come into contact with other animals during the dangerous time of the year. Any person bitten by a suspected animal should lose no time in going to the nearest doctor who can give Pasteur treatment.

Prevention depends entirely on the successful rooting out of the disease from dogs and wild animals. It was stamped out of England by continuous muzzling for a number of years, but appeared again when somebody smuggled an infected dog by aeroplane during the war. In America the problem will be even more difficult to solve, but until rabies is eradicated from dogs and plunderers from horses man will still be liable to these formidable diseases. This would, however, be the end of them, for neither is spread by one man to another.

THE SICKLY CHILD

By L. Lamar Matthews

ON a windy day in the early Fall a little girl was walking down the street with her mother. Suddenly the child gave a sharp cry and slapped her hand over her eye.

"There's something in my eye," she cried.

The mother tried to remove the particle that was causing the pain but failed. The child rubbed her eye and made it worse. A friend joined the distressed pair and jabbed at the offending speck with the corner of a handkerchief, while the mother held the shrieking child.

Then came a Good Samaritan and seeing a child, in distress, stopped to offer a suggestion.

"Pull your upper eyelash down and hold it while you blow your nose," she told the little girl. This the child did and the black speck appeared on her handkerchief.

"I've never known that remedy to fail," said the G. S., "and I always stop and offer it to any one who needs it."

Which, after all, is a very kindly sort of service—even though it includes that bugaboo known as unasked-for-service.

It is mother nature to pass on any remedy that has been found helpful in dealing with one's own children, and it seems a pity to withhold such information when there are so many little boys and girls hurting themselves every day in every way.

The season of poison ivy or "poison oak" is always one of extreme irritation for children in the country. Once they touch the poisonous plant they are slated for a skin eruption that is both painful and aggravating.

As a remedy for this ill the United States Department of Agriculture recommends 5 per cent. solution of potassium permanagnate. The mixture can be made up by any druggist. It should be swabbed on the poisoned places with a bit of absorbent cotton. The permanganate leaves a brown stain; but soap and water or a 1 per cent. solution of oxalic acid will remove that.

Here is an old-time remedy, for burns—one that has been tried time and again with amazing success.

Apply kerosene at once to the injured part. It will prevent blistering and removes the soreness. Kerosene is also good for croup. Rub the throat with vaseline, cold cream or some other grease; then dip a bit of cotton in kerosene and place it in the little "honey well" of the child's throat. A few minutes will be long enough to drive out the croup. Do not leave it on too long as it may blister the neck.

Iodine for cuts and bruises—applied once and only once—has saved a lot of pain and inflammation.

For those hurts around the mouth the eyes, the nose that are constantly befalling children use witch hazel.

Hot water is good for so many different ailments that one wonders why as little hot water is used.

A thorough cleansing of the digestive organs, a hot bath and then sleep in the fresh air have saved many a spell of illness for little folks.

And the best place in the world for a sick child to find rest and ease is in that spot above mother's heart that was made especially to fit a little head.

ROBERT TERRY SHANNON
Author of "THE TAXI DANCER"

A Story of Sylvia Byrant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

CHAPTER 52.

It was difficult, it was a drag on her conscience but she persuaded herself. He was, she argued, what might be called an invalid. In a way. Anything to soothe her conscience—or was it be vanity?

"I'm seventeen kinds of a fool," she told herself. "He probably'll think I'm the worst pest on earth, but he needs me and I'm going. For pile own good."

And she went.

By the time Sylvia reached Alexander Ladd's place on Albany street she had succeeded completely in convincing herself that her motive was purely altruistic. He needed her.

To bind up the broken; to rescue the perishing. A high mission. And all the while her heart was strumming over and over with a single refrain. "He loves me . . . he loves me . . . he loves me. . . ."

But this was sheer conjecture—a silly conclusion to be banished by common sense. She had few tangible grounds to assume that she was in any way an object to be cherished by Alexander Ladd—no real grounds . . . nothing but an intuition, the psychic wisdom of her sex. . . .

A swelling sensation in her heart flooded her with happiness, with courage. The barrier of his money and power that had before stood between her and Alexander Ladd was gone now, swept away. The old awe of him had disappeared. A Samson stripped of his strength. She was closer to him now than ever before. It would be not to see her joy, to rebuild. . . .

Outside his house she hesitated before entering. The street was in a quiet hour and it seemed there was a haze in the atmosphere, a thin fog of peace and beauty softening the harsh outlines of reality.

Just before she entered there was a moment in which she put all romance out of her head—became practical. To dream was a sort—but the pleasure was wrapped up with its secrecy. What went on in a girl's brain, her heart, was something to be shielded instinctively from the man . . . the man in the case.

She rang the bell with a firm, unromantic finger. He would never know, she resolved, from anything she said or did. The role of pursuer was entirely theoretical. Actually, he would have to be aggressor—if anything ever happened. His voice, as on "esterday, called down the aisles.

"Yes—what is it?"

"It is I." She trusted him to identify her by the pronoun, and he did.

"Will you come up, or—"

"I'll come up."

He looked at her with a mingling of surprise and—she was not quite sure of this—of approval.

"I didn't expect yesterday's good fortune to be repeated so quickly," he said. "But you never know your luck. Take off your hat and coat, please. Since you are here—we might as well be thorough."

She complied without superfluous protest. He was as well-groomed as he had ever been; she noticed this with satisfaction; there had as yet come no break in the physical morale. So far, apparently, the disorganization was mental. She corrected that estimate; it was economic, rather than mental. He was as keen as ever. "I've come to resume our quarrel," she stated. "I wasn't satisfied with the progress yesterday."

"I'm sorry for that," he told her. "I was hoping the call was social."

"And I'm sorry you had, or have, any such idea," she declared primly. "What I have in mind is something useful."

"Good! What is it?"

"I mean no good wasting time beating around the bush," she said, trying desperately to sound coldblooded. "You've put me in an awful position uptown. People are saying that I ruined you—that your interest in me resulted in your leaving your firm. They're saying you're down and out on account of a woman—and they're naming me."

"Who is?"

"It's common gossip. Among the girls in Seawright, Golden and sawyer's office—in dozens of other places. Do you think that is at all pleasant for me?"

His face darkened. "I didn't know that any such talk was going around."

"It's just the same, and whether you know it or not, it's pretty hard on me. And, of course, the fact that you are down and out gives color to it. Oh, I wouldn't mind what they said if you were making any kind of an effort—"

She was trying to put force and indignation into her c arge, but she could feel that Alexander Ladd was not taking her quite as seriously as she had hoped. He was, in fact, smiling.

"I don't believe that talk amounts to anything at all other than a little bit of petty gossip you probably overheard some place. You're just employing it as a device to get me to go back to work. You're taking the wrong method, however."

She had started out so bravely and, almost at once, he had taken command. "I'm telling you the truth," she insisted, feeling a trifle beiplexed.

"The truth in a weak solution," he rebuked her. "That scandal is just a joke. It's important to me, however, that you do have enough interest to want to get me back on my feet. After you left last night, I was awake for hours thinking over what you said. No, Sylvia, you did hit on one thing that might move me—but you're ignorin- it completely this evening."

"I won't, if you'll recall it to me."

"You asked me about the woman I loved. Suppose, we drop all this foolishness—and take up the real issue. . . ."

Sylvia's heart began to swell, to contract, rapidly. The woman he loved. . . . It had come up sooner than she had foreseen; and, now that it was present, she was conscious of a sudden, unreasoning impulse to that could thrill her.

"I'm glad you came so early this evening," he said, watching her.

"I'm glad you came at all, of course. If you hadn't, I was planning to go after you."

She was startled at the rapid drive he was making. For inner caution, the anticipation that had so filled her, began slowly to evaporate, to be succeeded, mysteriously, by an emotion that perilously resembled fear.

"I didn't come here to discuss your love affairs," she pro-ested.

"Your interest seemed rather more sympathetic on that subject last night," he reminded her. "I was surprised to find that I was amazingly stirred—you touched a spring, you released something and I'm afraid, Sylvia, that I shan't be able to ignore it. Do you know what happened?"

She could answer him only with a negative shake of her head.

"I'll tell you. You said something last night about my ulking and quitting—I think that got to my vanity a bit. At any rate it did revive, perhaps it created, a little stiffening in the sinews. And all this leads to what I've gathered the courage to tell you. Can you believe that, somehow, I've always been afraid of you?"

"Afraid of me!" she echoed.

"I was afraid to appear in a certain light before you. You see, I was a creature of extraordinary pride. Call it conceit, if there was any one thing on earth I consistently avoided it was humiliation and defeat. I wouldn't even take a legal case, whatever the fee, unless I was certain I could win. Does this explain to you why I might have been in absolute terror of a ridiculous defeat at your hands?"

It was impossible for her to restrain the tide of color she felt mounting to her face. What there was of romance, of hope for love, in her heart was held in a state of absolute suspense.

In his analytical way, with a precision that seemed to amount almost to coldness, Alexander Ladd was leading up to a fact so intimate that Sylvia was as nervous as though a mask was being stripped from all of his—all of her—secrets.

by and for the people, you at least have power to kick out and punish those that make government a failure. It isn't the intelligence of the average voter, but the fact that he can throw out of office that makes him important.

A little before the great hour of the fight it was announced that Dempsey weighed 192¼ pounds, Tunney 189¾ pounds. What counts is not weight but mental energy that sends orders through the nerves to the muscles, and creates the subsequent "punch." Arrangements had been made for fifty millions on the radio to hear delectable details of the fight from start to finish.

Prize fighting is arranged now so that millions are paid by those that see it, and details of the inspiring affair are sent in to every home. This should have a decided effect on civilization in the long run.

Bolshevist Russia and France have agreed on a debt settlement. Russia claims certain differences because of the injury inflicted upon Russian business, but will settle in full, in sixty-two years. United States boy financiers that bought Kerensky's bonds and the Czar's bonds, when a microcephalic idiot might have refused them, will prick up their ears at this. Russia makes a $6,000,000 first payment at once.

If Russia begins paying her debts, United States high finance will change its attitude and see bolshevism beginning to grow little white wings.

Lieutenant Koennecke, brilliant German aviator, on his way from Germany to the United States, flying east, has reached Angora, Kemal Pasha's capital, on the first leg of his flight. He has radio operator and his financial backer with him, and made the 1,875 miles from Cologne to Angora in less than eighteen hours.

Another German, Gerhart Priesler, whose specialty is "flying stunts," has broken a world's record by flying upside down, feet up toward the sky, from Cologne to Bonn, twenty-one miles, in fifteen minutes. Some will say that such a "stunt" is useless. But it isn't. It shows that a man can do what he makes up his mind to do, and that's important.

For the second time in her history, Mauretania has crossed the ocean in five and one-half days. She burns oil now instead of coal and passengers say that vibration, noticeable in coal-burning days, has entirely disappeared. Big tanks filled with oil on either side of the hull perhaps take up that vibration. In any case, they help to take up some of the world's surplus oil, which may not be a surplus very long.

German ship builders promise ships that will cross in four and one-half days. They will be oil burners, extra speed will consume a terrific amount of extra fuel, but three trips instead of two will make up for the extra fuel cost.

Cy Caldwell, veteran flier and authority on aviation, tells engineers that New York city has only eight planes for defense. Mr. Caldwell is just back from a fruitless airplane search for Nungesser and Coli

Eight planes cost perhaps $240,000, not much of an investment to defend New York, which contains the sub-treasury and could yield to a well-managed raiding air fleet several billions in ransom.

Inasmuch as the national government cannot see its way to establishing an air force to meet modern conditions, State governments should take the matter in their own hands to protect themselves.

emotions may be expressed by the human body."

The California girl, with her self-evolved art, was subtly but unconsciously suggesting with her lithe body the spirit of the Parthenon come to life after two thousand years.

Alma-Tadema, Lord Leighton, Andrew Lang and other classicists saw in her a living embodiment of Greek art. She put into ancient forms young flesh and living dreams. Their raptures and their praise led the antique communicated itself to the girl and she embarked upon a study of Greek art and Greek literature that became a lifetime occupation. She made no secret of her study which she ever undertook.

Isadora had been saying that she believed her dance to be that of the future. "I try to express in it all the emotions of the heart and mind."

Now she spoke of the day when she says she will go on.

"I shall rebuild the Temple of Paestum and open a college of priestesses, a school of the dance. I shall teach an army of young girls who will renounce as I have done, every other sensation, every other career. The dance is a religion and should have its worshippers."

Ellen Terry, watching the young American girl's dancing for the first time one night in London, suddenly sprang to her feet in her box, a figure of striking beauty.

"Do you realize what you are looking at?" she cried to the audience.

"Do you appreciate what this woman is doing for you—bringing back the lost beauty of the world of art?"

A friendship that was to last through life and was to remain unspoiled throughout the growth and break of Isadora's romance with the actress's son, Gordon Craig, commenced that night. Second only to Duse in her artistic estimation of first in her heart, Isadora held the older woman Ellen Terry, likewise retained a lifelong affection for the dancer and a profound admiration for her art.

Although apparently successful in London and Paris during these days, yet Isadora went many times hungry.

"We nearly starved in London, and in Paris, too," she said.

But for me, however, Greek art was glowing in her breast. There was also a dissatisfaction. She was unsatisfied with her public and with her own work. She longed for a great cosmopolitan public who would take her to its heart; a public of art students and laborers and clerks and dressmakers.

(Further advancement of Isadora Duncan's London career will be told in tomorrow's instalment of her life story by Fred Tayo)

Finding the Planets

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

"What is the easiest way to find the planets? I bought a fairly good telescope, and Webb's 'Celestial Objects for Common Telescopes,' but I do not find any information about finding the planets, such as Jupiter, Saturn, Mars.—F. S."

THE planets are in continual motion around the sun, so that their positions cannot be represented on a fixed map of the heavens. The stars remain in unchanged positions with reference to one another, but the planets all travel eastward over the fixed background of the starry sky. But each planet travels at its own rate of speed, depending on its distance from the sun, while the earth, too, travels in the same direction as the other planets at its own rate.

Thus there arises a complication of apparent motions which calls for careful calculations to determine where any particular planet will be, as seen from the earth, at any given time.

What you need in order to find the planets is: First, a knowledge of the constellations (which may be called the geography of the sky), and, second, tables showing the position of each planet, night by night, in right ascension and declination (which resemble longitude and latitude in geography).

I take it that you know the constellations sufficiently well already. For the planetary tables the source reference is the "American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac," published yearly by the United States Government, and sold for a dollar by the Superintendent of Documents at Washington.

In using this you need a good star atlas. An excellent one but costly is Bruhns's "Star Atlas." There are cheaper ones, also good, which you can consult dearest in scientific books.

I will add that, for the amateur's good use in the "Burritt-Servis Star and Planet Finder." This is accompanied by a table of planetary positions by the aid of which the approximate location of the planets can be determined at any date for a series of years in advance.

The outer planets, such as Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, move relatively slowly (Mars much faster than the others), so that having once located them you can keep track of them by continual observation. You will find it very interesting and instructive thus to follow the motions of these distant worlds as they advance slowly through the star fields, now approaching some particular star, then passing near it and finally leaving it behind.

Just now Mars is in the constellation Virgo, but too near the sun to be observed. Venus has just passed between the earth and the sun, and is in the morning sky, in the constellation Leo, but, like Mars, too near the sun for observation. Jupiter is in the constellation Pisces, below the Great Square of Pegasus, and is seen rising grandly in the east in the early evening. Saturn is in the constellation Scorpio, setting very early in the evening.

Beauty Quests for the Girl of 16

By Maria Jeritza,
Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company, One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day

THOUSANDS of letters I receive from young girls asking aid in solving their problems of grace and figure, hair and complexion, prove that even girls of fifteen and sixteen nowadays are deeply interested in the beauty quest.

This is as it should be. All of us have to make our choice to a great extent, between good health and physical discomfort, uselessness and usefulness, ugliness and beauty. Wise is the girl who resolves to be well, vigorous and beautiful, then proceeds to take practical steps in that direction.

Beauty and charm are, of course, largely a matter of physical and mental good health. Everyone is born with a personality which, kept at its best, spells charm.

The greatest beauty authorities agree that artificial beauty is a poor substitute for the bloom of perfect health. The aim of the beauty quest should be, not to cover up defects with cosmetics, but to remove all flaws by natural methods and keep the body at its healthiest and loveliest.

The daily regime needed to keep a young girl's body at its loveliest—her hair, teeth, eyes and complexion all they should be, her figure, carriage and posture approaching perfection—is not a burden, but is really enjoyable.

I suggest as the first essential, system. Orderly living makes all the steps that lead to neat, dainty grooming and healthy a sort of second nature, hence simple and easy.

Allow yourself eight or n ne hours of sleep nightly. If you infringe on this allowance one night, make up for it by an early bedtime the next.

Burning the candle at both ends destroys pep and will make any girl old before her time.

A daily warm bath with a cool rinse or shower, drinking seven glasses of water daily, three well-balanced meals, with much fruit and fresh vegetables, plenty of enjoyable exercise — especially outdoor exercises such as biking, swimming and tennis—and now and then a day of complete relaxation and rest, should give you vigor, grace and symmetry.

Nights, remove powder and dirt from your face, soak and care with warm olive oil or pure cold cream. Then remove the oil left on your face most [illegible] with a cleansing [illegible]. Rinse, first left to clear [illegible] then tepid, then cold water [illegible].

Every night [illegible] your teeth, rinse your mouth [illegible] and was. rub a bit of [illegible] tooth ointment into [illegible] they need it [illegible] brush your [illegible] arrange your clothes to suit the [illegible] and be guided in the [illegible] Then clean your [illegible] If you're nervous [illegible] before you [illegible] a quick cold [illegible] a few moments devoted to your hair, a moment to your nails, another to your teeth, and quick dusting should bring you to break [illegible] rested, fresh, and lovely as a rose.

Striving for this beauty founded on health of mind and body will not only insure you loveliness and neat daintiness today, but will build for future happiness, charm and beauty.

Becky Returns Home

What do you expect him to do if he fails for you? Marry you?"

"Yes," said Becky.

"You're cookoo for fair, Cinderella. He's a no half baked college kid. He's a grown man, and a pretty cagy one from what I hear. Men like him don't marry cheap little chorus girls. They consider they're doing 'em a favor if they knock 'em."

"That's a lie and you know it. I'm not an ordinary chorus girl, I'm good and decent, you know I am," Becky's voice, still low, was hoarse with anger and fright.

"Tell that to the man who owns one," Scarlett said with a laugh. "And wake up now. Don t wait until he kicks you."

"You've said too much," Becky tense with rage, walked to the door. "Now go, and don't come near me again. See?"

"Who do you think you're giving orders to, kid?"

"I—a—a—jailbird—a—" The sentence was never finished. Scarlett, his poker face still expressionless, struck her across the mouth.

"Now shut up and listen to me," he said sweetly.

Becky, her elbow crooked over her face, sobbed. "You wait until tomorrow. You wait until I tell Johnny you hit me. You see what'll happen to you."

"That is right. Tell him I bit you. Tell him I was in your room at four o'clock this morning. Then he'll know how good and pure little chorus girls are."

Becky lowered her elbow and put out a shaking hand. "Dan . . . please . . . you wouldn't let him believe—The sight of Scarlett's face flung her into a panic. "Dan, listen, listen. I got a little money saved, not much, but it's yours, anything I have's yours if you'll only let me alone" She clutched at his arm. "And listen, Dan, if he loves me really, if we ever get married, I'll get him to give you a—a income or something. Only leave me alone . . . please, please leave me alone"

"I see you're still having hope dreams," answered Scarlett. "But I guess after all he's the one to do the waking. This marriage stuff is the bunk, you'll find that out soon enough. And when you do—I'll be there."

"You'll go now, though?"

"Yes, I'll go now. And I won't be around for a while. But remember this, I'll be watching you, so don't try any tricks." Scarlett put on his hat, opened the door, and, from the threshold said: "By the time he marries you I'll be dead and buried."

When he had gone Becky, flinging herself down beside the stupid red doll, wept: "Oh, God, let me forget what he said. Don't let it be so, God, please don't let it be so."

Peel Years Off Aging Faces

Any woman can now look less than her age. Modern science has achieved in ordinary mercolized wax a medium which accomplishes the seemingly impossible. Just as a withering rose is made fresh and young looking by peeling off the faded outer petals, so the face will regain its youthful beauty, when the dead cuticle or scarf skin is removed, and the new underskin bursts forth. The wax actually peels off the aged surface skin gently, harmlessly, but surely. Get an ounce at any drug store, use as directed—and watch the years peel off! Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and age lines, use a face lotion: 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By JOHN P. MUDBURY

A RECENT census shows that there are over a million illiterate people in this country. Some of the men are so ignorant they can't even use good grammar when they're swearing at their wives.

ONE man said he couldn't learn his A, B, C's because he ate in a restaurant where they didn't serve alphabetical soup.

HE was raised on animal crackers and when he grew up he had to get a job in the zoological gardens.

ANOTHER fellow was so dumb he couldn't sign his own name, andtoday he's one of our most successful forgers.

HE'S serving a ten-year sentence now for biting somebody else's initials on the sheriff's arm.

IN Sing Sing he's known as John Smith, but that's only his pen name.

HIS folks tried to give him an education but he was always playing hookey from the correspondence school.

HIS parents were so poor the wolf wouldn't even hang around their door.

THE father wasn't a college man either. He went through Yale in a sightseeing bus.

HE had hoped to take a course in English, but the parrot died.

SO he did the best he could and picked up a few words here and there on the golf links.

HE said he wanted to learn enough profanity to enable him to drive a Ford.

RICH people are lucky, they can curse their automobiles in any language.

AN education is a wonderful thing, but it doesn't do you much good in a funeral parlor.

A MILLIONAIRE corpse can't use any bigger words than a poor one.

THEY all sound the same to the undertaker.

A FOREIGNER never has to worry when he dies. There aren't any immigration laws in Heaven.

OF course, while we're living it's nice to climb to the top of the ladder of success, but somebody has to stay on the ground to hold the ladder.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

NEARLY every wife is secretly and subconsciously jealous — not of another woman, but of her husband's club, lodge or favorite "hangout," which he seems to find so much more alluring than he does his home.

* * *

And there's a reason! For there are a hundred comforts, which a man can find at his club, that he never enjoys at home.

* * *

For instance, a club is always QUIET! It is a haven wherein a man may sit and doze or muse for hours, undisturbed, yet, where he can always find somebody with whom to chat or chum, when he feels expansive; where he may be ALONE or in company, at will, and where he may talk or keep SILENT, and nobody goes off and sniffles and wonders if his love is dead!

* * *

A club is a place where he is always sure of a pleasant greeting, no matter at what hour he may show up; where he may go to sleep after dinner or sit up until dawn, without being questioned; where he may arise with the lark or doze until noon, in peace and tranquility. For there are no human alarm clocks to shatter his dreams!

* * *

A club is a place where nobody censors a man's appetite, or looks reproingly at the number of cigar-stubs he has left in the ash-tray, where he may eat all those things which disagree with him, drink whatever he can afford to pay for, and sit around with a grouch all evening, and nobody is afraid he is going to die, or offers to call the doctor.

* * *

But then, no club ever made him swallow a quinine tonic, made him spray the lawn, go to church, put on his heavy underwear, or get up in the night and see what the noise was. And no club ever used his handkerchiefs to wipe off the cold cream, or acted jealous if he looked at another club!

Of course, no CLUB ever smelled of violet talcum and black narcissus, or told a man how wonderful he was, or called him "Sweetikins," or put the links in his shirt, or sweetened his coffee, or found his shoes.

* * *

Perhaps, that is why a man is always so eager to reach his club, and so reluctant to leave it, in a club he is his OWN guardian!

* * *

Oh, yes, the Eternal Triangle is not half so often composed of a man and two women, as it is of a man, and a CLUB!

* * *

"Home" may be "where the heart is," as the old song goes. But if that is true, most men are more at home in a club, than at home!

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you please tell me who pays for the flowers for the bridesmaids and the bride, and who pays the cab bill?

You will settle a much-heated argument if you will please publish these two questions with their answers. PAL.

THE groom always sends the bride her bridal bouquet—this is a time-honored custom. He talks over with her, of course, what kind of flowers she prefers, and then orders them from the florist and pays for them.

The parents of the bride pay (usually) for the bouquets of the bridal attendants. They are planned to harmonize with the attires of the attendants—indeed, they are part of the costumes, since the colors must blend with the colors of the dresses. And choosing and ordering flowers for this is a bit more than one could want to inflict on the groom.

Most of the cabs used for the wedding are paid for or provided by the parents of the bride. That is, the father of the bride orders and pays for the cabs for the bridal attendants, who leave his house for the church and who return to his house for the reception. The only cab that the groom pays for, is the cab that takes him and his best man to the church for the ceremony, and this cab is usually the one that is used afterward to take the bride and husband from the church to the place in which the reception is to be held. And later, it is the cab that takes them to the station from which they leave for their trip.

NEW APPEAL FOR FUND TO BUILD ARMENIAN HOME

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 23.—Threatening to resign as the League of Nations' commissioner for Armenian refugees unless the powers really do something to create an Armenian national home, Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, the noted Arctic explorer, succeeded in inducing the council to make a new appeal to the nations to contribute funds to settle on the soil of the Armenian republic Erivan some 80,000 refugees now scattered over different parts of the Near East.

STEAMSHIP AURANIA EMBARKS 160 IN HUB

The Cunard steamship Aurania, under Capt. McNeil, arrived at Pier 4, East Boston, on her way from New York to Queenstown and Liverpool, and after embarking 30 cabin passengers and 130 in the third cabin the liner departed on her passage across the Atlantic. While the Aurania was here she took on about 65 tons of express cargo.

J. W. Crosby, a retired Boston merchant, with his wife and daughter, left on the liner, and after spending a short time in England will go to Worcester for the Winter.

A Difference in Faces

The Face Reflects the Mind

THE YOUNG LEADER IN CHINA—GENERAL CHIANG KAI-SHEK, AND TWO SOLDIERS

Above, three Chinese, and one look tells you which is the REAL man. The man in the middle, standing at the entrance to the Ming Tombs, where many Chinese Emperors lie buried, is a man of power. Perhaps he is thinking that one day HE will lie in the tomb of the first founder of the Kai-Shek dynasty.

The young man in Chinese costume, with firm jaw and high forehead, is, in spite of his youth, one of the ablest China has had in the Chinese national movement. He found his Communist associates and Russian advisers, whom he used at first, a disadvantage, and got rid of them.

He is accompanied in his visit to the Ming Tombs by two of his Chinese soldiers.

In the face of the young general you see every possibility of victory. In the other two faces you see, quite clearly, NOTHING AT ALL.

Study faces, especially when you FIRST meet men or women. Study the eye, the general expression; they tell the story of the mind back of the face. It is for us to READ the story.

That reading is important for those that select business associates, employes for important work, and especially for those that select their future husband or wife.

American Ships

They Should Carry America's Sea Trade; We Need Our Own Ships in Peace as Well as in War

The United States today exports forty-eight hundred million dollars' worth of goods a year, more than any other country in the world.

Nevertheless, no other great nation ships so few of its exports under its own flag. Three-quarters of our foreign trade is carried by vessels of other nations.

We had one severe lesson in the wartime losses that come to a country without a merchant marine. When war was declared the dominant British sea power chased the German ships off the seas. The British ships were commandeered by the British Navy. That is, the British and German carriers, upon whom our people were dependent, suddenly quit the service.

Our export trade was ruined. Foodstuffs and cotton, denied their foreign outlet, were thrown back upon the domestic market to depress prices and ruin farmers in the South and West. Higher ocean freight rates were charged by the few vessels that were available. It is estimated that in the first year of the war we paid five hundred million dollars more in freights than we should have paid if we had had our own ships. The loss to our producers in reduced farm prices alone was a thousand million dollars more.

We are a peaceable nation. There is no reason why our foreign commerce should be interrupted whenever two other nations go to war. That danger will always confront us until we have an adequate merchant marine of our own.

However, we need our own ships in peace as well as in war. No sensible merchant would entrust the delivery of his merchandise to a fleet of wagons owned by his competitor. Instead, he owns his own wagons and does his own delivering. So we have got to do, on the seas.

Last session of Congress closed before a vote could be had on the bill of Senator Jones, of Washington, providing for further development of the merchant marine. Among other provisions it authorizes the Shipping Board to construct new vessels to take the place of old vessels wearing out and to build new vessels to complete the merchant fleet.

Unless this replacement program is carried on we shall soon have no government-owned merchant marine—and it is the government-owned merchant marine which, with the exception of a few routes, is keeping our flag on the seas.

Brigadier-General A. C. Dalton, president of the Government's Merchant Fleet Corporation, announces that in the last twelve months he made a profit of $371,085 from operating the Leviathan and four other ships out of New York in the transatlantic passenger service. General Dalton wants two other ships of the Leviathan type, so that the three together can maintain a weekly service across the Atlantic. His request should certainly be included in the replacement and expansion program to be recommended to Congress by the Shipping Board.

Finally, high-speed merchant ships are needed as fleet auxiliaries in wartime. Without them the national defense is not complete.

Nobody needs a merchant marine more than the agricultural producers of the West and the South, though they live inland and never see the ships that serve them. It looks as though their representatives in Congress are at last ready to vote the money to keep an adequate merchant marine in service. Senator Jones' bill should pass.

KINGS CAN'T DO AS THEY PLEASE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SHORTLY after he had been made King of Rumania, little Michael was playing with his toys. He had been told he was not like other people. It was said to him: "You can do as you will and others must agree it is right."

While he was playing the nurse came and informed him that he must have his face washed. He didn't want his face washed. He was busy playing.

He said: "I am king now and I can do as I wish. If I want to play with my toys I will—I have that right."

This is in line with the popular notion and also the infantile notion that kings can do as they please, the higher the station a man occupies the more free he is.

Nothing is farther from the truth.

The more money you have, the higher your position and altogether the more important personage you are, the more you are hampered by convention.

Kings' sons and daughters cannot marry people they want to, but their consorts are chosen for them by reasons of state.

Think of having to marry and live with the homely Princess Hogenheimer when you hanker after beautiful Mary Brown with violet eyes.

And that is not the worst of it. Somebody looks after your food and lets you eat only certain things. You are allowed to drink only so much. You may have forty-three uniforms, but somebody picks them out for you and tells you when you must wear them.

Wotan, in the Wagner operas, was the supreme king, yet somehow he was controlled by the writings upon his spear.

As far as that is concerned, the Creator cannot do as He pleases. There is one thing we can do that He can't. We can do wrong.

The Creator can do no wrong; He can't make mistakes; He can't neglect His duty.

Man is endowed with the divine privilege of doing wrong, of committing error and of soldiering on his job. As far as we can see man, the lower down in the scale of the social ladder he is the truer it is, he constitutes the only personage who can do as he pleases.

No. If you want liberty, freedom and the right to follow your own sweet will, stay down. Don't climb. For the higher you go in the social scale the more you are circumvented.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

A wounded heart can with difficulty be cured.—Goethe.

Sooth words in place of gifts. —Plautus.

Profusion is the charm of boys. —Ludwig Börne.

Man often indulges too much in vainglory about his contempt of vainglory.—St. Augustine.

Being asked whether he was at leisure, Dionysius the elder said, "No, nor do I ever expect to be."

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

FEW of the colleges opened last week when the children's schools hereabouts started business. The only departments which worked all Summer were the bursars' offices. The bursar of a college is the cashier, tax collector and treasurer.

• • •

We called on Simmons College first for our investigation. Simmons was doing business very nicely and the bursar reported an overflowing safe.

• • •

Wellesley, Radcliffe and Jackson not having opened, we made excursions. Freshmen were registering at all these places, even though classes and lectures do not begin until next week. Registration by the freshman consists of signing a dozen cards with name, appetite, etc. Then she is allowed to pay the bursar a few hundred dollars. If she is late with her cards she is "bursared" for a $5 fine.

• • •

After seeing most of her money put in the safe the freshman sees her advisor. If the "advisor" signs some more cards the student is allowed to pay the bursar more money. This game holds out until freshman has no more money. She must then stay in her room and study.

• • •

At Tufts College all the student needs is knickers and sweater. For $300 a year the student can live comfortably, pay his fraternity board and dues, his tuition, buy what books he needs and still have enough left for running expenses.

At Harvard and Tech $900 is necessary for the boy who lives at home, while the resident students can spend several thousand dollars.

• • •

One chap in a Tech dormitory was bewailing. Upon investigation it was discovered that his father had cut his allowance for the coming year. The student was to receive only $1,800 for his expenses for the nine months. What a shame. His last year's flivver was dingy, but is must do another year.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE received a very bitter letter from a young man.

He says that popular writers make him ill. Why have none of them the courage to tell the truth, particularly "the truth about the rottenness of modern business and the corruption and hypocrisy of business men."

Six years ago, when he entered business, he was filled with a beautiful confidence in his fellow man. He believed all the delightful things which men say to each other at Get Together Luncheons. He realized that there were liars, cowards and cheats in the world, but he was sure that all his associates were honest, kindly gentlemen and that Better Business was conducted on the Golden Rule.

Now he tells me that he has "lost one illusion after another." He has seen men desert their best friends in time of trouble. He has detected his most trusted confederates in falsehoods. His own interests have been betrayed time and again.

"Today," he writes, "I trust no one, believe in no one and am convinced that all men are selfish, cowardly and cruel. And I, myself, am as bad a hypocrite as any, for, knowing these things, I still smile and pretend that all is well."

I suppose that all of us who go into business feel that way, at some time. And we, too, demand indignantly that someone shall "tell the truth and expose the whole rotten mess."

But that isn't the truth—the whole mess ISN'T rotten.

It is true that human beings are selfish, cowardly and cruel. We do betray each other and hurt each other. We do and are these things because we are still very near our natural savage state and the instinct of self-preservation still functions fiercely in us.

But we aren't entirely selfish, or cowardly or cruel.

And we aren't hypocrites when we claim to love fair play and kindliness. We are growing into finer things just as we are outgrowing grosser things. As time goes, it wasn't very long since we were shambling things, clad in thick coats of hair, armed with ripping nails and slashing fangs. People are still arrested for mayhem, and chewed ears frequently appear in court. But ear chewing is no longer the mode. We're really beginning to prefer lovelier methods. And this new taste for beauty and order and truth is working in us like a leaven.

We still break and betray each other in business. We still maneuver for the throat hold, but we also, at times, do brave and beautiful things. Once in a while we seem to escape from our sordid selves as a prisoner escapes from a cell, and for a little while we are free and clean and generous. We go back to our cells again but that does not mean that our better selves have died. It only means that we are prisoners. And every time we make a jailbreak, we become a little stronger for the next escape.

Think of that when you are sickened and embittered by the cruelty and cowardice of life. Do not focus your thought upon the mean and malicious things men do. It is inevitable that men should do such things in their present condition. Look rather on the amazingly fine things they do in spite of their infirmity. Look at the growing beauty of life and hope for humanity!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

HE never fought in any battle-line
And never knew war's loud responding roar, nor saw the bursting star-shell's fury shine where peace had reigned supreme for years before. He never swept with swing of marching feet and waving banners high in bright array through
